HUNT BOY IN DEATH OF GIRL

Harold Craft, Cousin of Victim, in Note Says, "I Done It;" Police Say Child Clubbed to Death

Is there a second Jesse Pomeroy at large in Greater Boston?

A murder warrant was issued today from West Roxbury District Court for sixteen-year-old Harold Craft of No. 14 Norfolk street, Roxbury.

He is accused of causing the death by clubbing of a two-year-old baby girl, his cousin, Arline Kern, younger child of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Kern of No. 4 Stimson street, West Roxbury.

The boy, who is now being sought all through Boston and the suburbs, fled from the Kern home last night, leaving Baby Arline dying from concussion of the brain and bruises. A note signed with his name was found by the horrified mother. It read, in substance:

"I done it. I couldn't resist it. I'm going to go away."

Three weeks ago Baby Arline was left in Harold Craft's care. Bruises were found on her. Harold told the mother Arline fell and bumped herself. The story was believed at that time.

This time the baby's bruises were

Shells Are Destroyed in Lowell Fire

Lowell, Jan. 29.—Two alarms were sounded for a fire which broke out early today on the top floor of a three-story storehouse belonging to the Merimac Utilization Company.

The fire was of mysterious origin; and the loss is estimated by the police at $25,000.

The building itself was filled with cotton waster, but in the basement were stored shells and shell casts belonging to the United Cartridge Company.

Girl employes in the Middlesex Woolen Mills, a few yards from the storehouse, were on the verge of a panic when the fire first broke out, but were quieted.

Wilbur Oaks, a fireman, was overcome by the smoke and taken to the hospital.

BRANDEIS' SUPPORT GROWS

Signs That Senate Opposition to the Boston Lawyer for Supreme Justice Is Rapidly Dwindling

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The opposition in the Senate, which yesterday seemed very strong against confirmation of the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to be an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, had materially weakened today.

Senators closest to President Wilson, who were canvassing the situation, insisted that not only would Brandeis be confirmed, but that the opposition would be in a hopeless minority. In this connection the suggestion that Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia would lead the fight against Brandeis was quickly squelched by the Senator himself.

"This report is untrue," said Mr. Smith. "I have an open mind on the subject. I believe that every senator will also assume that position. What I want to know and what others will desire light on is whether Mr. Brandeis is a reformer first and a lawyer afterwards, or whether the opposite is the case. If the lawyer predominates, and all other things are equal, there seems no reason why he should not be confirmed. I will not decide what I will do until I know all of the facts."

COMMITTEE MEETS MONDAY.

The Senate Judiciary Committee will meet Monday and refer the nomination to a sub-committee for action. This committee will weigh any objection that may be made and will then recommend a course of action to the full committee.

Friends of the President said that a canvas of the Senate had shown there were more than enough votes pledged to confirm Mr. Brandeis' nomination, and they declared that the President and his candidate would welcome an investigation of Brandeis' qualifications by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

One problem confronting Brandeis' friends was the possibility that the Judiciary Committee would either decline to report out the nomination, or if it did report it would do so unfavorably. Chairman Culberson is frankly opposed to confirmation. So also, it is claimed, are a majority of the committee, but exact figures were unobtainable, as Senators were very reluctant in admitting their opposition to Mr. Brandeis.

Kaiser's Troops in Great Drive Extend Fighting to South of the Somme and Capture Frise

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Jan. 29.—The city of Vilna, now held by the Germans, is burning.

Flames set by Russian shells have been raging for several days, and it is understood that the Germans are preparing to evacuate that portion of the city which is still standing.

By International News Service.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—The great battle in northern France has been extended south of the Somme River.

The German War Office today announced the capture of the village of Frise, south of the Somme, and 1,600 yards of French trenches south of the village. Northeast of Neuville St. Vaast, in Artois, the Germans took by storm 1,700 yards of French trenches.

The text of the official report follows:

"West front.—Northwest of Mapil Farm, northeast of Neuville St. Vaast, the Germans took by storm 1,700 yards of enemy trenches. We made prisoners of 37 men, among them an officer. Nine machine guns were captured.

"Several French counter-attacks against the positions near Neuville St. Vaast, recently captured by us broke down, but the enemy did succeed in occupying a second mine crater.

"In the vicinity of St. Laurant, near Arras, the Germans captured by storm a group of houses.

TAKE VILLAGE OF FRISE.

"South of the Somme the Germans captured the village of Frise and 1,600 yards of the enemy's position lying south of it. We also captured 12 officers and two French pirates, all unwounded, as well as 13 machine guns and four mine throwers.

"South of Lihons a German reconnoitering detachment pertruded to the enemy's second line, where it took several prisoners and returned to the German lines without incurring any losses.

"In Champagne there were lively artillery and mining engagements.

"On Comres Heights the French exploded a mine, but it did only slight damage to an advanced trench.

AEROPLANE SHOT DOWN.

"After an unsuccessful attempt to occupy the crater caused by the explosion, the enemy was forced to retire, having suffered heavy losses.

"South of Apremont, east of Meuse, an enemy aeroplane was shot down by our high angle guns. The pilot was killed and the observer was badly wounded.

"Only slight damage was caused by the air attack against Freiburg on the night of the 22d. One soldier and two civilians were wounded.

"East front.—Several Russian attacks near Beresitany were repulsed by Austro-Hungarian vanguards.

"Balkan front.—There is nothing to report."

Today's Testimony by Widow in Ordeal at Providence Trial

Providence, Jan. 25.—Following is the complete testimony today of Mrs. Mohr, who concluded her long ordeal on the stand in her trial for the alleged murder of her husband.

William H. Lewis, counsel for Ex-Victor Brown, cross-examined Mrs. Mohr.

Q.—Mrs. Mohr, do you remember when Victor Brown first came to work for the doctor? A.—I think it might have been over eight years ago.

Q.—Your memory isn't very good as to dates, is it? A.—I knew he came there after my son, Charles, was born.

CHILDREN FOND OF BROWN.

Q.—What were his duties generally about the premises? A.—To care for the horses and carriages and do other kinds of work, and also to look after the children when they were out driving with him.

Q.—Did you have a pony cart there? A.—Oh, we had a little pony cart.

Q.—And did he look after the pony cart while it was there? A.—Yes, he used to take the children out to drive in it.

Mrs. Mohr spoke very low.

Q.—Were the children fond of him? A.—Oh, yes, indeed, they were very fond of him.

Q.—Did they ever complain to you or the doctor of any bad treatment by him? A.—No.

"That is all, Mrs. Mohr," said Attorney Lewis, returning to his seat.

John B. Edwards, counsel for Henry Spellman, waived his right to cross-examine Mrs. Mohr.

Mrs. Mohr was then taken for re-direct examination by Attorney Cushing.

Q.—Mrs. Mohr, I think you have already testified to your husband's handwriting? A.—Yes, I have.

IDENTIFIES LETTERS.

Attorney Cushing handed Mrs. Mohr two letters.

Q.—I'll ask you if these letters are in your husband's handwriting? A.—They are both in my husband's handwriting.

Attorney Cushing took the letters from Mrs. Mohr and brought them over to the Attorney-General's table. The Attorney-General and his assistants conferred as to the letters for five minutes.

Attorney-General Rice then addressed the court:

"I raise the point that these letters are addressed. If the rule is against me when I try to introduce letters of that kind it should hold good against the other side."

Attorney Fitzgerald: "Your Honor, these are letters of Dr. Mohr, bearing on Dr. Mohr's marriage."

Judge Stearns inquired as to the address on the envelope, and Attor-

WIDOW FINISHES STORY; WANTED WORLD TO KNOW

Providence, Jan. 29.—"I was determined that the world should hear my story, and I have bared my life for my children's sake," said Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr to the AMERICAN, after completing her testimony on the witness stand today.

"I felt better every minute I was on the stand," she continued. "I gained strength as I went along. I got so mixed up in dates, but they are things I never could remember. I was trying so hard to get everything straightened out. Everything I testified to is a matter of record and can be easily proved.

"When I got in the witness box, everything looked so different. I felt frightened, with all eyes turned on me. I was sick the first day and was advised not to go on."

Mrs. Mohr began her testimony Wednesday at 3 p. m., concluding at 10:45 today with the final declaration that she made a man of her husband, financially and morally.

Attorney Cushing got in the fact that Dr. Mohr had the children baptized, and introduced a letter written by the doctor substantiating the witness' statement that she thought she was legally married.

Dr. John Morrissey of the Rhode Island Hospital, who testified for the State, was called and testified that on the night of the mirder Chauffeur Healis stated at the hospital he thought the shots were fired from inside the automobile.

The witness also testified that George W. Rooks, brother-in-law of Emily Burger, said to Healis: "This is all a frameup between you and Mrs. Mohr to get the doctor." He also testified he heard Chief O'Neil say to the chauffeur: "Well, you'll remember more before the night is over."

In response to question by Attorney Lewis, the witness said that he had told practically the same facts to representatives of the Attorney-General's department.

Mrs. Mohr, looking refreshed after her night's rest, entered court early, accompanied by Joseph Rush, of Cushing, Carroll & McCartin. She received the usual number of letters and appeared to derive much comfort from reading some of them.

That Mrs Mohr, in spite of her confusion, was defending herself with flying colors in the battle of wits with Attorney-General Rice, skilled in every resource in court procedure calculated to discredit a witness, was evidenced by the sudden end of the cross examination.

And it was not Mrs. Mohr who gave in first. When her ordeal suddenly stopped she was becoming more confident with every question. And with every answer the discomfiture of the

50 SWEPT TO DEATH WHEN DAM BREAKS

By International News Service.

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—With a death list of at least fifty persons, scores missing and twenty-five farmhouses swept away, the floods in the Otay Valley continued their devastating rampage today, according to advices received here from Los Angeles by wireless, the only remaining means of communication between here and Southern California.

About half of the flood victims in this section were Japanese. They were swept to death when the lower Otay Valley dam broke and a wall of water thirty feet high swept over an area fifteen miles long and two miles wide.

Eleven billion gallons of water were released when the dam went out without warning. Rescue parties organized to go into the flood-swept section to aid the inhabitants were stopped by washed out bridges and streams that were swollen to such proportions that the launching of boats was impossible. A food famine was threatened, according to latest reports.

Property loss inthe Otay Valley will reach 1,000,000. The radio station at Los Angeles reported another $1,000,000 damage in the vicinity of Los Angeles and Elsinore.

Rivers were out of their banks for the second time within less than two weeks, and residents of New Hope and Talbert were homeless. Several hundred persons were reported marooned at Murrieta Springs, and rescuers were unable to reach them.

The wireless reports stated that near San Diego several bodies had been seen floating on the surface of the flood waters and that the death list might exceed the coroner's estimate of fifty.

SAFE BLOWERS AT CAMBRIDGE GET $700

Professional burglars entered the main office of the Eagle Cornice and Skylight Works, No. 24-30 Tudor street, Cambridge, blew the safe and secured about $700.

The men jimmied their way into the office, secured several overcoats belonging to the office force which had been left hanging on nails because of the warm spell, and trundled the safe out to the workshop in the rear of the building. The overcoats were used to deaden the sound of the explosion, which demolished the safe and wrecked the workshop.

The burglars left no clews, but are thought to be a gang that has been riding about Cambridge in an automobile and stealing telephone pay stations in drug stores.

PRESIDENT WILSON PITTSBURGH GUEST

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 29.—A crowd of less than fifty, mostly policemen, greeted President Wilson on his arrival in Pittsburgh this morning at 9:31 o'clock. The special train stopped at Shady Side depot, two miles out from Union Station, where a committee of the Chamber of Commerce met the President and escorted his party to the Schenley Hotel. The greatest secrecy was maintained as to the place at which the President would leave the train, this accounting for the smallness of the crowd.

ney Fitzgerald told him the address was "419 Beach street, Fall River," and the name was "E. J. Sullivan."

"What is the postmark date on the envelope?" asked the Judge.

Attorney Cushing: "The postmark date is March, 1909."

Judge Stearns: "I have given considerable thought to allowing statements made by the deceased regarding affairs in which he was interested being permitted as evidence. I think the best statement in deciding this issue is in this book I have."

Judge Stearns then read a decision from a book on evidence, mentioning "the mere test of certain logical relevancy with reference in a due regard for the limits of the human mind."

"That's as good a statement as I found on the whole subject," said Judge Stearns.

CHILDREN'S BIRTH CERTIFICATES

Attorney Fitzgerald then tried to introduce a letter from Belfast, Ireland, which gave Mrs. Mohr's birthday. However, Judge Stearns ruled that it was inadmissible, and the only thing he would accept would be the birth certificate.

Q.—What was your mother's name? A.—Catherine McConville.

Q.—That was her maiden name? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was her marriage name? A.—Catherine Blair.

Attorney Cushing then offered the death certificate of Mrs. Mohr's mother, which showed that she died in Taunton, Mass., June 15, 1909.

The attorneys for the defence then offered the certificate of birth of Charles F. Mohr, ten-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Mohr, and also that of Virginia Mohr, their eight-year-old daughter.

The Attorney-General objected to their admissibility and the court sustained the objection.

Attorney-General Rice objected and was sustained.

Attorney Cushing: "Is Your Honor going to sustain an objection before he hears our argument?"

Judge Stearns: "I confess I was hasty. What are you trying to show?"

Attorney Cushing: "I want to show that Dr. Mohr went to the Cathedral with his two children and had them baptized. I want to show that he recognized them as his own children."

Judge Stearns: "The court will reverse itself. Question allowed."

Attorney-General Rice stated that, inasmuch as the letters he presented yesterday by Dr. Mohr's counsel were excluded, the letter written by Dr. Mohr to Mr. Sullivan should also be excluded.

COURT ADMITS LETTER.

Attorney Cushing stated that this letter would prove Mrs. Mohr's marriage and, inasmuch as the State had tried to prove there was no marriage, he thought it should be admitted. Judge Stearns asked Mr. Cushing to read him the letter, and after it was read the court decided, in view of the statement that the State had put in regarding the first marriage of the doctor, it should be admitted.

The letter follows:

Providence, March 5, 1909.

Mr. E. J. Sullivan, No. 419 Beach street, Fall River, Mass.

Dear Sir—I am rather surprised to hear from Elizabeth that you so wofully betrayed a trust and in addition added falsehoods. However, I am not in the mud-slinging business and will not say much about it. But you must not say too much about Elizabeth or you will have to answer to me. I don't care what you say about me, only don't say it too loud.

Elizabeth, I find, had a perfect right to think that she was properly and legally married. I have heard, however, through the Olney case in New York, that where fictitious names are given a marriage becomes illegal. Religion got us all mixed and that is only reason we did it that way.

I find through an attorney today that if the certificate is not recorded the marriage is not legal. I write this in defence of a good woman at present.

C. F. MOHR.

Q.—Were you present at the time?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you write that letter?

A.—I did.

Q.—Did you write it at the request of Elizabeth Fitzgerald?

A.—No, Dr. Mohr was.

Q.—The name of the Rev. Samuel McDougal has been mentioned in the testimony. I'll ask you if you ever knew him after May 15, 1908?

Attorney-General Rice then began his re-cross-examination.

Q.—Who is this man, Sullivan? A.—My brother-in-law.

Q.—Do you know the circumstances under which the doctor wrote this letter? A.—No.

Q.—Your brother-in-law said some very petty things about you, didn't he? A.—No. Nobody could say anything about me.

Q.—Nobody can say anything about you? A.—Nobody that is telling the truth. I have been a good wife and a good mother and I want you to know it, Mr. Rice.

Q.—Dr. Mohr said in his letter that he was not in the mud-slinging business. He didn't throw very much mud, did he? He got more than he threw, didn't he? A.—Not from me. I made a man of him.

Q.—Dr. Mohr's letter said he was writing in defence of a good woman at present. Did he investigate that or was he not been a good woman prior to this?

Objection sustained.

Attorney-General Rice questioned Mrs. Mohr at length about her feelings for Dr. Mohr in 1909.

Q.—You knew the difference between your husband and yourself in 1909, madam? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was that letter written when you were living with him or when he was away from you? A.—I had seen him and talked to him.

Q.—I'll ask you if you were living with him when that letter was written? A.—I had talked to him.

Q.—Madam, I'm asking you if you and he were living together when that letter was written? A.—I said I had seen and talked to him.

"ALWAYS A GOOD WOMAN"

Q.—And when he said he was writing in defence of a good woman, he meant you? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Did you know who was a good woman at present, whom did he mean?

A.—I don't know. I always was a good woman. The doctor would never have married me the second time unless I was a good woman. I had been his wife from 1903 up to that time and he was certainly good to me. I really don't know what you are referring to.

Q.—Were you living in Taunton and was he living in Providence at the time? A.—I wasn't living in Providence.

Q.—Were you living in Taunton and was he living in Providence when he wrote that letter? A.—What I contended she admits and that is the cause of our difficulty?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—You were indifferent about your conduct at that time? A.—No, never.

Q.—Did your statement say that everybody in Providence knew you had married him? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the result of his life here in Providence was the result of your careful work? A.—I got him to stop drinking and I tried to be good to him. He used to spend his money freely, and I got him to save his money. I got him to save what money he had.

Q.—And his life right up to the end was a result of your handiwork? A.—Yes.

Mrs. Mohr's answer could not be heard by the press.

Q.—Not even in those last few years you had great influence over him? A.—I was interested in him.

Q.—He sprung on him? A.—No, I was not sprung on him.

Q.—He overdrapplied on him? A.—No, I was not overdropping on him.

Q.—And you said he was a terrible man?

Attorney Fitzgerald objected.

Attorney General Rice did not press the question, and announced that he was through with the witness.

DR. MORRISSEY TELLS ABOUT "HOLDUP" TALK ON TRAGIC NIGHT

Dr. John Morrissey of the Rhode Island Hospital, who previously testified for the defense, was called as a witness for the defence. He was questioned by Attorney Cushing.

Q.—Dr. Morrissey, you have been here as a witness for the State? A.—Yes.

Q.—Doctor, you were at the Rhode Island Hospital the night of the thirty-first of August when Dr. Mohr was brought there? A.—Yes, but I hadn't been there more than an hour. I recall seeing him lying on his side in the car.

Q.—Do you recall any talk which Healis had with Inspector O'Neil? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did that talk take place? A.—In the accident room.

Q.—Where was it you saw Inspector O'Neil? A.—I saw him standing with Inspector Costigan.

Q.—Where did you see Healis? A.—I saw Healis go into a private room with Inspector O'Neil and Inspector Costigan. That was known as the private room in Ward 1.

Q.—Who were there when the conversation took place? A.—Chief O'Neil, Inspector Ahearn, Dr. Mohr, Healis and myself.

Q.—What did you hear Healis say in answer to a question put to him by Chief O'Neil? A.—I heard him say, "We were at a certain place in the country."

"SHOTS WERE FIRED."

Q.—Did you hear Healis say he stopped the machine? A.—I heard him say he stopped the machine.

Q.—Did you hear him say, "Shots were fired"? A.—Yes.

Q.—That there were four shots fired? A.—I heard him say that.

Q.—And were these questions asked Healis by Chief O'Neil? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Healis say, "I thought they might have been fired by someone in the car?" A.—The opinion he gave me was that he thought they were fired in the car.

Q.—Was Healis asked if he saw anybody in the darkness? A.—Yes, and he said he saw nobody.

Q.—Did he say to Chief O'Neil on that occasion that Miss Burger ran over to the side of the car and fell over the door? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that he, Healis, went over and tried to pick her up? A.—He said that.

Q.—And did Healis tell Chief O'Neil on that occasion that when he was trying to pick Miss Burger up he saw anybody or a car coming along? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say he saw the car coming? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he say he stopped the other car and tell the occupants that there had been a holdup? A.—He said he put up his hand to notify the other party to stop.

Q.—And did he say he had been held up? A.—He said he saw the other car coming and that he put up his hand. He said he was held up.

Attorney-General Rice: "It doesn't change the testimony any."

Attorney Cushing: "It contradicts the testimony."

Q.—Did he say to Chief O'Neil on that occasion that Miss Burger and the doctor were disputing in the car over the fooling of the dog? A.—That they were disputing about the dog on the drive down.

HEARD OF "PRAMEUP TALK."

Q.—Did one of the doctors present say, "Why don't you tell the truth"? A.—I said that.

Q.—Did one of the doctors say it would be a black mark's word against that of a white woman? A.—I said that.

Q.—Were you there when Mr. Rooks came? A.—I was in the room when Mr. Rooks came. I did not then know who he was.

Q.—Did Rooks say to Healis, "Do you know me?" A.—He said that later.

Q.—Did he say to Healis later, "You black——"? A.—He said that.

Q.—Did Healis say that the doctor would not permit him to keep the headlights and declined bargaining? A.—He did.

Q.—Did you hear Rooks say to Healis, "This is all a frameup between you and Mrs. Mohr to get the doctor?" A.—He did. I heard him say that.

Q.—Did Chief O'Neil say to Healis, "Well, you'll remember more before the night is over." A.—I heard him say that.

Q.—And did Healis later go out to the car and give a demonstration of what happened by lifting the hood of the car? A.—He gave a demonstration, and he mentioned about how the shots were fired.

Q.—Didn' Chief O'Neil say that Miss Burger wouldn't talk until she had seen her brother-in-law, Rooks? A.—Yes.

Attorney Lewis on cross-examination.

Q.—Didn't you tell all the officers and the representatives of the Attorney-General's office the same information that you have testified to here? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were brought in as a State witness and yet they have not drilled those facts out? A.—No.

"That's all," said Attorney Lewis.

SAID NOTHING WAS CONCEALED.

Assistant Attorney-General Edward B. Branch then cross-examined Dr. Morrissey.

Q.—Do you mean to say that you told me all those facts? A.—I didn't conceal anything.

Q.—I didn't ask you that? A.—During the three interviews you had with me I told you substantially everything I have stated here today.

Q.—You were prejudiced against Dr. Mohr, weren't you?

No answer.

Q.—As a matter of fact, when Dr. Mohr was brought into the Rhode Island Hospital in a dying condition you rejoiced, didn't you? A.—Positively not.

Q.—Didn't you crack a joke about him and kick his hat across the room? A.—I did not.

Attorney-General Rice then took a hand in the cross-examination.

Q.—Didn't they work over Healis for quite a while before him to give an opinion?

A.—Chief O'Neil and the other officers were trying to get him to state whether the shots were fired from the inside or outside of the car.

Q.—Didn't they work over him for over an hour before he finally gave his opinion?

Attorney Lewis: "Is the State trying to prove the contention of the defence that Healis was given a third degree?"

Dr. Morrissey answered.

"After an hour or so, Healis finally said that the shots were fired from within the car."

Attorney Fitzgerald arose to begin redirect examination of Dr. Morrissey, and Judge Stearns interrupted him by stating that in the future both the State and the defence will have to confine its examination to one counsel. He said that if every attorney in the room wanted to get in a few words the case would never end.

After one or two questions by Attorney Fitzgerald the witness was excused, and Dr. Henry B. Mayo, of the Rhode Island Hospital staff, took the witness stand.

STATE'S ATTORNEY FAILS TO SHAKE WIDOW'S STORY AS SHE FIRST TOLD IT

By SOPHIE TREADWELL.

Providence, Jan. 29.—Attorney-General Rice's cross-examination of Mrs. Mohr was incisively severe. So she left the courtroom much more sure of herself than on Thursday after but two hours' examination.

Although she was involved in many contradictions, she did not allow herself to again become confused. When ever she was faced with two of her own statements diametrically opposed she would answer simply, "I made a mistake," and the examination would have to proceed.

The Attorney-General led her to announce positively that she had never made but two threats on Miss Burger's life in letters to George W. Rooks. The two letters were early presented by the State in evidence. And then they promptly thrust under her eyes three other letters on the same subject to the same man.

"I made a mistake, Mr. Rice," she said easily, without the slightest embarrassment.

She gave many indefinite answers to the simplest questions. "I think perhaps I did," "I presume so," "I really couldn't say," "Why, in a way," "Well, it ought have been," and "I don't remember. I can just recall."

"Enough is all she rising to the surface that became a sort of refrain to all her testimony, "I loved him."

She clung to it, no matter to what reduction absurdum it brought her.

"Did you love him when he beat you?"

"Love him! I loved him from the bottom of my heart!"

"And when he wrote you, 'I don't want anything around that reminds me of you,' you still loved him?"

"I did. I always loved him."

"And it is because you loved him that you are telling us here all about the beatings he used to give you and that he was a drunkard and a 'dope' fiend? Is this because of your great love?"

"I just wanted to show how much I thought of him. How much he always thought of me. I loved him."

Later when Mrs. Mohr was taken over the lengthy divorce litigation she had brought against Dr. Mohr and was asked, "Didn't you resort to every method you knew of to aggravate and irritate the doctor?" she said calmly, "I always tried to please him—to make him happy."

Mrs. Mohr was taken over the morning when she was brought before the police to hear the accusations made against her by the three negroes—Brown, Spellman and Healis —who charged her with having hired them to murder her husband. She denied that any one of the three men was known to her or that she had ever plotting against her husband. It confirmed her denials of threats against him. It gave her another opportunity to deny the charges of George W. Rooks, brother-in-law of Emily Burger, "the other woman," and it permitted her to contradict again the statement by Constable Wallace that any other woman would have killed him long ago.

Those were the only witnesses for the State whose testimony had actually connected her with the charge against her. She had denied their testimony in direct examination, and in cross-examination she emphasized that denial.

The first attack of the Attorney-General had been to ask her about love letters from Dr. Mohr to Miss Burger. This line of attack plainly puzzled her, and while she was still puzzled, wondering where it would lead, she answered that question of her age and the date of her birth. Realizing that she had tripped, when so much depended on her alertness her wits, her mind flew into a panic of confusion.

Those love letters were offered by the Attorney-General, but were refused as exhibits until after it had been established by testimony that Miss Burger had received them. Letters from Mrs. Mohr to Miss Burger's brother-in-law, however, were read, one of them containing a recitation of the threat against Miss Burger.

One of these she had written from Montpelier. "You gave me your word," she wrote to this brother-in-law of "the other woman," "that she would not look at him again. I have had both traced, and the telephone call from Fall River was also her number. I think if I could have got hold of her Saturday, I would have just about killed her."

And to his final attempts for an admission of a bargain for divorce she was equally firm in her denials.

"Didn't you authorize your attorneys to offer Dr. Mohr an absolute divorce, on the basis of the doctor giving you the Newport house and $20,000?" asked Mr. Rice.

"No, sir," she replied.

"And didn't you they offer to let the doctor have an absolute divorce for the Elmwood avenue house and $10,000?"

Another denial from Mrs. Mohr.

"Did you ever make an offer?"

"I talked over the proposition of giving my husband a divorce, Dr. Mohr her and $75,000, but I don't think I would have done that," she explained.

"Didn't Dr. Mohr's attorneys tell your lawyers that the doctor would give you $10,000 and no more, and weren't you indignant?"

"I refused one offer, but I don't remember what it was."

"Then in the Summer of 1915 you dropped down to a matter of dollars and cents?"

"There were conferences about it but I absolutely refused to break up my home, the Montpelier, and $75,000. Mrs. Mohr finally admitted.

It was there that the cross-examination ceased.

MOHR LETTER CONFIRMING WIFE'S BELIEF SHE WAS LEGALLY WED

THE following letter, written by Dr. Mohr in 1909, and confirming the statement of Mrs. Mohr that she believed herself to be legally married, was introduced and admitted at the Mohr trial today:

Providence, March 5, 1909.

Mr. E. J. Sullivan,
419 Beach street,
Fall River, Mass.:

Dear Sir—I am rather surprised to hear from Elizabeth that you so wofully betrayed a trust and in addition added falsehoods. However, I am not in the mud-slinging business and will not say much about it. But you must not say too much about Elizabeth or you will have to answer to me. I don't care what you say about me, only don't say it too loud.

Elizabeth, I find, had a perfect right to think that she was properly and legally married. I have heard, however, through the Olney case in New York that where fictitious names are given a marriage becomes illegal. Religion got us all mixed and that is only reason we did it that way.

I find through an attorney today that if the certificate is not recorded the marriage is not legal. I write this in defence of a good woman at present.

STATE DRAGGED OUT SORDID SECRETS SAYS DOROTHY DIX

Sometimes she wept. Sometimes she smiled mirthlessly; Sometimes she raged furiously. Sometimes she snarled with her lips drawn back from her teeth. Sometimes she clawed viciously, but she never once broke down or went to pieces, as everyone had prophesied she would do. Her voice, that had been inaudible the day before, rang out loud with defiance. Necessity had lent her a species of courage and she fought blindly back with the desperation of a rat in a trap. It was a pitiless cross-examination, that dragged out all of her sordid, shameful little secrets and published them to the world. It stripped her bare of every rag of conventional respectability and swept away all of the poor pretence of virtue and goodness with which she had sought to build herself up a place in society as the wife of a big, rich man.—Dorothy Dix in her story of Mrs. Mohr on the witness stand.

SAYS WIDOW FOUGHT LIKE RAT IN A TRAP

By DOROTHY DIX.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 29—Gray-faced, haggard, worn, her eyes with the saggy puffs of sleeplessness under them, but with her nerves strung to fighting pitch, Mrs. Mohr came again to the witness stand to do battle with Attorney-General Rice for her freedom.

The photographs show Charles F. and Virginia Mohr, who may be called as witnesses in the defense of their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Blair Mohr, on trial in connection with the murder of her husband. Mrs. Mohr is also shown as she appeared on the witness stand. In the oval at the right is Attorney-General Herbert Rice, conducting the gruelling and sometimes sneering cross-examination of Mrs. Mohr.

Sometimes she wept. Sometimes she smiled mirthlessly. Sometimes she raged furiously. Sometimes she snarled, with her lips drawn back from her teeth. Sometimes she clawed viciously, but she never once broke down or went to pieces, as everyone had prophesied she would do. Her voice, that had been inaudible the day before, rang out loud with defiance. Necessity had lent her a species of courage and she fought blindly back with the desperation of a rat in a trap.

It was a pitiless cross-examination, that dragged out all of her sordid, shameful little secrets and published them to the world. It stripped her bare of every rag of conventional respectability and swept away all of the poor pretence of virtue and goodness with which she had sought to build herself up a place in society as the wife of a big, rich man.

When it ended it had shown her not only as a woman who had contracted a common-law marriage, but whose husband claimed that when she did invigle him into going through a marriage ceremony with her he was so intoxicated he did not know what he was doing.

And it showed this husband asking for a divorce from her on the ground of cruelty and infidelity.

It showed her charged by her husband with plotting with a servant girl to accuse him of an unmentionable crime in order to get a divorce. And it showed that this girl, whose name she was willing to sacrifice, was a poor, ignorant soul who was her own first cousin.

USED BOY AS SPY.

It showed her not only spying upon her husband through the servants and chauffeurs and his office assistants, but as blighting the innocence of her own little son, only ten years old, by revealing to him the relations existing between his father and Miss Burger so that he could keep watch upon them.

It showed her as tormenting her husband and bedevilling him in every possible way, and when he died as being so greedy for money he left behind him that in less than an hour after his last word of his death, she had sworn out an application as custodian, for his estate, and was at his office taking possession of it.

And it showed her a poor, blundering, stupid fabricator, who would say one thing one minute and exactly the opposite the next.

But it had not undeniably and unmistakably linked her with the murder.

Try as he might, Mr. Rice could not make her admit that the two negro boys had come to her house on the night they asserted they did, and on which they claim they made with her the final arrangements for the assassination of her husband, and she flatly denied over and over again that she made assertions to the police officials that they say she did.

And so the case stands at the end of the defence's star witness' testimony.

Mr. Rice's cross-examination, which was very clever, ranged from broad farce comedy to tragedy. Beginning with Mrs. Mohr's story of the cruelty she suffered from her husband, he made her describe at length the various beatings that he inflicted upon her, each of which, she had testified, but made her heart grow tender. Then he said:

"And after he had beaten you, you still loved him?"

"I certainly did."

"After he had knocked you down in the bath tub you still loved him?"

"I loved him more than ever."

"After you had come home from your dying mother and he beat you, you still loved him?"

SHE ADORED HIM.

"I loved him from the bottom of my heart."

"And after you knew that he was keeping company with another woman, you still loved him?"

"Yes."

"And after he had threatened to kill you, you still loved him?"

"Yes."

"And when he wrote you this one love letter, the only letter you ever received from him in your whole married life, in which he says, 'I never want to see you, or have anything to do with you and want you to get out of my house,' you still loved him?"

"I adored him."

"And after he had threatened to kill you to get your jewelry you still loved him?"

"I certainly did."

"Madame, can not this a love born of hate?"

"No," cried Mrs. Mohr. "It was love born of my heart, and in spite of the way he treated me I loved him and he knew it."

"Then Mr. Rice asked Mrs. Mohr if she did not bring her various suits against the doctor just to aggravate and torment him.

"No, no," said Mrs. Mohr. "I loved him. I tried always to please him."

"Did it tickle him very much to have you get out an attachment against all of his property and tie up his bank account?" inquired the Attorney-General. And the judge, who has a sense of humor, smiled sardonically and allowed the question.

Then the Attorney-General asked about the divorce suit which Dr. Mohr had brought against her and which Mrs. Mohr indignantly denied was anything but a bluff.

ONLY IN FUN.

"The doctor never wanted a divorce from me," she said, her weak chin beginning to tremble. "I suppose," said the Attorney-General, "it was only in fun that he asked you for a divorce and charged you with cruelty."

"It seems so," replied Mrs. Mohr.

"And were all those other suits—the injunction against the doctor's property and the suit for separate maintenance and for contempt of court, entered into in the same playful spirit?"

"Yes, they were," said Mrs. Mohr, whereat even the jury smiled.

However, in spite of Mrs. Mohr's repeated assertions that neither she nor the doctor ever entertained the slightest intentions of getting a divorce even if they had applied for one and the time of the divorce hearing had been set in court, Mr. Rice wrung from her at last the admission that during June and July of last Summer they had been bickering over the price of one Dr. Mohr, it appears, was only too willing to come across with $10,000 while Mrs. Mohr held out for the Newport place and $75,000.

Coming down to the day after the tragedy when the three boys had been arrested and were confronted with Mrs. Mohr in the jail, Mrs. Mohr dramatically acted out the scene.

"When they saw me," she said, "they could not look me in the face. They hung their heads and when Inspector O'Neil asked them if they had committed this crime they just drooped their heads."

"Mrs. Mohr," said the Attorney-General, "didn't Brown look you squarely in the eye when he was asked if you had not promised to give him $5,000 for shooting your husband and say, 'Mrs. Mohr, it is true, and you know it is true,' and didn't Spellman say the same thing when he was asked if you had not promised to give him $1,000?"

"No, they just dropped their heads and didn't say anything," replied Mrs. Mohr.

And behind this barricade of denial of all knowledge of anything pertaining to her husband's assassination she took refuge nor could any of the Attorney-General's bombs dislodge her. She simply dug herself in and stayed there.

THE CENTRAL FIGURE.

Mrs. Mohr is the central figure in this whole trial as the State claims that she was the central figure—the motive power—in the plot to murder Dr. Mohr and disfigure Miss Burger.

Remove her and the crime is absolutely purposeless as the negroes made no attempt to rob, and had no ill-feeling against the two people they attempted to kill.

Therefore on the fate of Mrs. Mohr hangs the fate of all, for if she is clear of the charge against her it seems impossible but what the boys should escape also.

Hence her testimony is the real crisis of the trial and on which, if the jury believe her story and sympathizes her hangs the result. Undoubtedly Mrs. Mohr hurt herself, so far as creditability is concerned, by telling so many stories that were obviously false during the matters that one knew not little matters that one believe her.

For the rest she is a singularly unsympathetic figure. She lacks youth and beauty to appeal to the eye, and above all she lacks greatness of soul to appeal to the heart.

There have been women, who, in the frenzy of passion, have committed murder and but for that single red crime lived stainless lives. There have been women who have loved and who have defied the conventions, and who but for that fault were among the most noble and generous and high-minded of women.

But Mrs. Mohr has not these redeeming virtues. She is just a dull, narrow, peevish, jealous, spying woman, hurling abuse and threats at her rivals, about whom it is impossible to wrap even a single wisp of tenderness or romance.

Undoubtedly she has suffered much at the hands of her brutal husband, but equally undoubtedly she made things unpleasant enough for him.

And from all the evidence so far adduced in this trial, things must have broken fifty-fifty in the Mohr household.

BELIEVE WOMAN SENT FATAL PUFFS

Woonsocket, R. I., Jan. 29.—That a woman mailed the package of cream puffs which caused the death of Armand Vadeboncoeur and the serious illness of Henry Cassavant, a local contractor, is the belief of the police here. It is reported the authorities investigating the case have a suspect under surveillance.

According to the police, the nature of the package and the fact that it was addressed in a feminine hand, makes them certain the sender was a woman.

REQUESTS BOSTON AID.

Postmaster Cavanaugh has asked the department at Boston to send two postoffice inspectors here to try to trace the package.

Meanwhile a chemical analysis is being made to determine definitely whether poison was placed in the cream puffs before they were sent through the mail. Chief of Police Coe, however, has been at work on a theory that the puffs were sent with a criminal intent.

As Cassavant is in a serious condition at the Woonsocket Hospital, Coroner James A. Rickard went to his bedside and took his statement. The police say that Cassavant declared that he knew of no enemy that would be likely to attempt to murder him and that he was unable to give the slightest clew.

SENT BY SPECIAL DELIVERY.

The package was mailed in this city and bore a special delivery stamp. It was delivered to Cassavant by a youth who does extra work at the postoffice. Cassavant opened the package immediately, and seeing the cream puffs invited the youth to have one. He refused, and Cassavant passed the box to Vadeboncoeur. The latter ate one and Cassavant ate two.

The police, after a conference with Attorney-General Rice, summoned Dr. Henry Bernstein, a pathologist of the State Board, and asked him to make an examination. He will determine whether the puffs caused ptomaine poisoning or were deliberately poisoned.

The contestants claiming a share of the estate of Murphy are Anna E. Margaret M. and Elizabeth Bowen of Somerville.

Back Achy After Grip?

GRIP leaves thousands with weak kidneys and aching backs. The kidneys have to do most of the work of fighting off grip. They weaken—slow up. Then you will feel dull and draggy, irritable or nervous, and will have headaches, dizzy spells, lame back, backache, sore joints and irregular kidney action. Give the kidneys quick help and avoid serious kidney troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills are always in unusual demand after a grip epidemic because so many people know their reliability. Greater Boston people recommend Doan's. Here are some cases:

Boston People Tell of Their Cases:

Sudbury Street

Eugene Schoepflin, picture framer, 75 Sudbury St., says: "I was taken with severe backaches and pains through my kidneys. I had pains in the top of my head, too, and felt miserable. These attacks seemed to come on every four or five weeks. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and got relief which has not troubled again for quite a while. The aches and pains then returned and I again used Doan's Kidney Pills. They fixed me up in good shape in a short time."

Warrenton Street

Melvina S. Tucker, 15 Warrenton St., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally for attacks of backache and a tired, worn out feeling, and they have always benefited me. They have also regulated the action of my kidneys which had been irregular. (Statement given July 15, 1914.)

On May 4, 1915, Melvina Tucker said: "I have been free from kidney trouble since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

W. 3rd St. (S. Boston)

Mrs. L. A. Thayer, 259 W. Third St., says: "Mornings I felt stiff and lame across the small of my back. When I tried to bend over to put on my shoes, sharp, sudden pains darted through me. The kidney secretions were unnatural and caused me much trouble. I felt tired and lacked ambition. Two or three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cleared up the kidney secretions and rid me of the backache."

Condor Street (E. Boston)

Freeman J. Wagner city fireman, 41 Condor St., says: "For quite a long time I had been troubled by backache and kidney trouble. My back ached constantly and if I bent over I could scarcely manage to get up again. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and soon my back was not stiff and weak. The kidney secretions were also colored, burning, and scanty but they frequent in passage obliged me to get up often at night. Three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cured me."

Broad St. (Woburn)

William H. Jones, 72 Broad St., says: "I had kidney trouble and suffered terribly from backache. I was in such severe pain that I could neither bend nor turn around, and frequently my head ached. Many times I was very dizzy and specks floated before my eyes. The kidney secretions were unnatural and contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

Notre Dame Street (Roxbury)

Mrs. Peter Brosn, 47 Notre Dame St., says: "I had a tired, dragging ache in the small of my back, and at night I had to keep a pillow under it. If I sat down for a while I became stiff, and it hurt me to get up. My head also darted through my body. I didn't have any ambition and was tired and listless. I realized that my kidneys needed a tonic. A couple of boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills greatly benefited me."

Boston Chorus Girl Wedded to Mill Man's Son

Dispatches from Burlington, Vt., today told of the romantic wooing and marriage of Jennie Ossiedehih, of East Boston, an attractive chorus girl in a musical comedy company playing in the Vermont city. The ringing of the wedding bells ended a long love chase by Harold E. Jones, son of William F. Jones, superintendent of the Maxfield Woolen Mill of Bangor, Me.

The pretty Jennie is now Mrs. Jones. The youthful groom became infatuated with the young woman, whose stage name is Jennie Clair, when the company was playing at Bangor. He trailed the company to Marlboro and into Vermont. He has been in Burlington all the week, and finally persuaded the girl to marry him. The ceremony was performed by a Justice of the peace.

Young Jones sent the first news of his marriage to his father in Bangor by telegram.

The bride was born in Russia and has been on the stage several years. She is twenty-two, and the groom gave his age as twenty-one.

Haverhill Man Shot; Arrest of Brother-in-Law

Haverhill, Jan. 29.—Michael Sarratoria of Ward Hill was taken to the Hale Hospital today dying from two bullet wounds. Later in the day Sarratoria's brother-in-law, Frank Madagalia, was arrested on Washington square.

The police say the brothers-in-law quarreled over money and that Madagalia went to Sarratoria's lodgings at 4.30 a. m., crawled through a window and renewed the argument. The shooting followed. Madagalia fled, the police say, taking the road to this city.

Sarratoria was wounded in chest and abdomen.

Madagalia was arraigned before Judge Winn in the District Court, charged with assault with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000. At police headquarters a loaded revolver, flashlight and box of cartridge were found in his pockets.

HOLD TWO IN LYNN IN SURGERY CASE

William B. Smith of No. 21 Porter street, Lynn, and Violet A. Jerome, charged with illegal treatment of Annie Gordon and Bessie Sakalaropolous, were arraigned in the Lynn court and held for the Grand Jury. Smith in $3,000 and Miss Jerome in $500.

PLAN SENATE BATTLE TO REJECT BRANDEIS

dently opposed to him made it plain that on a "show down" they might feel compelled to vote to confirm because of the fear that their reasons might be misinterpreted. This was chiefly because of the suggestions that certain interests would fight the nomination on racial grounds.

Opponents of Brandeis insisted that his confirmation would be opposed on the following grounds:

WHY BRANDEIS IS OPPOSED.

First—Because he is recognized as a radical reformer, with strongly partisan views on important Federal questions.

Second—His appointment will weaken the Supreme Court, because he will be unable to sit in judgment on some of the cases to come before it on account of having served as counsel for the government in these cases. This objection is especially strong inasmuch as Justice McReynolds already is disqualified as a judge in numerous cases because of having served as Attorney-General.

Third—He has been antagonized the railroad interests of the country because of his activity in seeking reductions in rates.

Fourth — He has antagonized the shipping interests of the country by advocating that the railroads be authorized to impose additional charges for free services such as loading, unloading, ferrying, lightering, etc., that they have for years performed. This was Mr. Brandeis' solution of the problem of how to get more net revenue for the railroads without increasing freight rates.

Fifth—He comes from Boston, whereas many Senators believe a Supreme Court Justice should have been chosen from the South east, inasmuch as Justice Lamar, whose place Mr. Brandeis is nominated to fill, hailed from that section.

One Democratic member of the judiciary committee declared that there would be "the biggest kind of a row in the committee and on the floor of the Senate" before Mr. Brandeis' nomination would be confirmed. Others suggested unmixed amazement at the President's choice, and said they could find no reason why such a selection was made.

Meyer London, the Socialist member of the House from New York, was the only representative who would formally comment today on the nomination of Mr. Brandeis. He said:

"The nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to the Supreme Court is both clever and wise."

The appointment of the nomination created a real sensation among members of the House, but while there was plenty of comment, members declined to express themselves for publication. A large part of the comment made privately was vigorous in criticism of the President for the appointment.

"The Senate ought to throw out any Senator who votes to confirm Louis D. Brandeis as Supreme Court Justice," said one prominent Democrat.

Republicans generally looked upon the nomination as an intelligent effort to gain support from the radical element of the country.

The views of Mr. Brandeis on the practice and functions of the Supreme Court were expressed by Senators and members who had heard him argue at various times before committees.

On February 17, 1914, in the last Congress, he appeared before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, in support of the Stevens rate-fixing bill. The argument developed several questions involving Supreme Court decisions and Mr. Brandeis spoke of one Supreme Court opinion as having been made "inadvertently."

That term should not be used in connection with a decision of the highest court in the land," remarked Representative Barclay of Kentucky.

"Why not?" inquired Mr. Brandeis, and he explained that in the income tax cases the people had got around the Supreme Court by amending the Constitution.

"The rule laid down in the original income tax cases," he said, "was not in harmony with public policy as the people who are the supreme authorities."

"The question of public policy was not involved in the income tax cases," interrupted Representative Barclay.

NO DISRESPECT.

"Precisely," replied Mr. Brandeis, "and in a very large number of cases where questions of strict law are before the court, we have to accept the decision of the court as the legal authority. But on a question of public policy it is no disrespect to the Supreme Court to say that the majority of the court were mistaken. There is no reason why five gentlemen of the Supreme Court should know better what the policy demands than five gentlemen of Congress."

It developed today that not a single Senator, so far as could be ascertained, had been consulted or taken into the confidence of the President. Many Senators were at luncheon when the nomination came in. They refused to believe their colleagues until they had seen the official paper with their own eyes.

While some of the Democrats who voiced their opposition in emphatic terms may be whipped into line there is a small but influential group that will stand out to the last. These will have the support of the conservative Republicans. If the President attempts to "drive" the nomination through the Senate he may precipitate a filibuster in executive session that will endanger his legislative program, it was said.

The opposition so promptly manifested against the selection of Mr. Brandeis and the threats of a contest recalled the fight of Senator David B. Hill of New York, when he prevented the confirmation of William R. Hornblower and Wheeler H. Peckham of New York, appointed by President Cleveland. Hornblower was personally objectionable to Hill and after hearings before the committee the President was persuaded to withdraw his name.

STOOD BY BILL.

Peckham's selection was equally objectionable to Hill, who asserted that both belonged to a faction which fought him mercilessly and he considered their selection a personal attack by the President.

The Senate rejected the nomination by a vote of forty-one to thirty. Among those the President nominated Senator White of Louisiana, present Chief Justice.

There also was a determined fight during Grant's administration over Supreme Court appointments. Grant first appointed Caleb Cushing, who was then Attorney-General in Johnson's Cabinet. After a hard but unsuccessful effort to have him confirmed Grant withdrew his name and substituted that of Robert H. Williams, Attorney-General in Hayes' time. The Judiciary Committee refused to recess him, however, and M. R. White of Ohio was nominated and confirmed.

APPOINTMENT IS PRAISED BY LEADERS IN BAY STATE

ASA P. FRENCH, Former United States District Attorney:

An excellent appointment. Mr. Brandeis is a profound lawyer and an admirably fair-minded man.

GOVERNOR McCALL:

Mr. Brandeis is a brilliant lawyer. He may or may not be a great jurist. This will depend entirely upon whether he shall show the judicial quality.

MAYOR CURLEY:

The appointment of Mr. Brandeis is excellent. Not only has the President honored Boston by naming a Boston man for the Supreme Bench, but he has done himself proud by the decision. Not anywhere in America could President Wilson have found a man more eminently fitted for the high station he has given Mr. Brandeis.

ARTHUR M. HUDDELL, former president Boston Central Labor Union:

I think it is the finest thing that ever happened to the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Brandeis is closer to the people than any man who has ever served on the Supreme Bench. The appointment is an ideal one.

A. SHUMAN, president City Hospital Trustees:

The appointment by President Wilson of Louis D. Brandeis to meet with the general approval of the country. I have known him since he was a student at Harvard. He is a man of great force and energy, able, patriotic, a profound lawyer, and is amply fitted to be an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

HERBERT PARKER, Former Attorney-General:

It is a recognition of very remarkable attainments and of a service which, during many years, has excited wide public attention. His somewhat radical view of public policies has stimulated very wide admiration for his talents, and undoubtedly he has brought about some popular reforms of lasting benefit to the country.

JACOB DE HAAS, Editor of the Jewish Advocate:

The nomination of Mr. Brandeis to the Supreme Court has aroused the enthusiasm of all Dr. Brandeis' fellow Zionists. They have already in scores sent in their congratulations to their leader. Coming at this time the nomination is a unique event which all Jews everywhere will rejoice. During the last two years Mr. Brandeis has come to be recognized as a leader of the Jews throughout the world.

FORMER GOVERNOR FOSS:

I think it is an excellent appointment. I had occasion to talk with Mr. Brandeis many times when chief executive of the State and I always found him fair and considerate—a man of striking integrity. While he may be considered radical, at the same time I think responsibility tempers a man. I think he will make an excellent Justice.

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, Member Massachusetts Public Service Commission:

I am very much pleased at the news of Mr. Brandeis' appointment, and I think the President has made a very wise choice.

GEORGE W. ANDERSON, United States District Attorney:

The final decision to appoint Mr. Brandeis to the Supreme Court was, of course, most gratifying to me. I have known him intimately and with increasing admiration and respect for more than twenty years. He is not only a great lawyer, but he has been for many years one of the great leaders of social thought in this progressive American democracy. He is a fair-minded, broad-spirited, with a trained social sense possessed by very few.

In many respects it is a pity to limit the scope of his activities by putting him on the bench. But lawyers and students everywhere are increasingly recognizing that the Supreme Court of the United States is the greatest law-making body in the world. The people who believe that the Constitution should be as effective to secure and protect human rights as it is to secure and protect property rights should rejoice greatly in Mr. Brandeis' appointment.

WILLIAM F. MURRAY, Postmaster of Boston:

President Wilson has made many remarkable appointments, but I have known of no appointment that is more remarkable than the elevation of Louis Brandeis to the Supreme Court. The President has recognized the conspicuous ability of Mr. Brandeis and the recognition has been made without the suggestion and stimulation that ordinarily goes with appointments. The President has also shown that selfish interests may confidently rely upon Woodrow Wilson will respect and honor.

MATTHEW HALE, Chairman of the Progressive State Committee:

I think it is a very fine appointment. Mr. Brandeis is interested in the economic problem facing the country today and it is important to have as many men of that kind as possible on the Supreme bench of the United States.

A. LINCOLN FILENE.

News of Mr. Brandeis' appointment as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court comes to me both as a great surprise and a great pleasure. An appointment as well deserved as this is bound to make men more and more willing to give themselves to public service.

I, personally, know of no higher appointment that could have been made, and in the making there must have been equal satisfaction both to President Wilson and Mr. Brandeis.

FELIX VORENBERG:

I am very much rejoiced over it. The President ought to be congratulated on his appointment. I believe not only the President, but the entire American people have cause for congratulation on having at their call such ability as a member of the highest court in the land.

HENRY G. WELLS, President of the State Senate:

Mr. Brandeis is one of the ablest attorneys ever graduated from Harvard Law School in the long and honorable history of that institution. He has done a beneficent work for a great mass of people. I am glad Massachusetts is recognized.

DANIEL J. CHAPMAN, State Senator from Boston.

The appointment is excellent. I believe Mr. Brandeis has one of the cleanest minds in the United States. In the past there has been too much consideration of the corporate interests at Washington. Mr. Brandeis will make a people's judge in the broadest interpretation of the term.

BACKACHE WARNS YOU TO WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged-out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel, or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes which are always in your system have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys and the little poisonous animal germs which are causing the inflammation are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They are prepared in correct quantity and convenient form to take, and are positively guaranteed to give prompt relief, or your money will be refunded. Get them at any drug store, but be sure to insist on the GOLD MEDAL brand, and take no other.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist upon his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel rejoiced health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand and thus be sure of getting the genuine.

War Summary

German attempts to break the allied line and plunge through to Calais still continued today; and slight successes for the Germans have marked their "drive" thus far.

After forty-eight hours of bombardment, designed to shatter into dust the entrenchments of the allies, the Germans launched four infantry attacks.

Their losses were heavy, as were those of the allies. They succeeded in gaining a position in some of the allied first-line trenches in one spot, but elsewhere, according to French reports, their attempts to attack were checked.

If Germany is throwing all her strength into these attacks, their failure is a significant indication that her strength is waning. But it is possible these attacks are in the nature of feints. Their true significance should be revealed within the week.

That Germany has been planning a blow on the western front is indicated by information from many sources, cumulative during the past weeks.

TERRIBLE BLOW PLANNED.

The latest is contained in an interview with Enver Pasha, Turkish commander, in which he says:

"Once the campaign in the Balkans is victoriously ended, the Germans will strike a terrible blow at the western front."

But on the other hand Russia fears a drive at Riga; and London believes a concentration against Salonica is in progress.

The only fact that may be stated with certainty is that the allies are still on the defensive, that the initiative lies with the Germans.

The Lusitania controversy assumed new importance today. The President's "organ" in New York announced that he had given Germany till February 5 to yield absolutely on the Lusitania, under penalty of "vigorous action" of a nature not specified. Secretary Lansing later commented: "There is nothing to that story."

Disavowal is the point upon which the negotiations hinge.

Mesopotamia was quiet yesterday. On the Austro-Italian front, Austrian attacks were fruitless. In Albania, Austrian successes continued, with Durazzo about to be abandoned by the allies. Montenegro appears to have concluded a definite peace, giving the Austrians assurance of help in putting down internal disorders.

ERZERUM STILL MENACED.

Russia is still about to capture Erzerum, but the accomplishment of the feat is deferred.

Concerning the maritime law as modified by the war an interesting development yesterday was the action of the United States proposing a new code for the guidance and protection of merchant vessels. Britain and France, with the other belligerents, were asked to agree to this code. They are expected to refuse.

Britain is laying mines in the channels leading into the Baltic. This may be followed by the declaration of an absolute blockade of German ports. Such a blockade will not be recognized by the United States unless England controls the trade within the Baltic—or unless Sweden joins Germany so that a blockade may legally be applied to Sweden and Germany together.

England has called all single men and childless widowers who enlisted under the Derby plan, and who are between 27 and 35, to the colors. Lloyd-George, as though by way of comment, said:

"I think for us the war is only beginning."

NEW LUSITANIA NOTE REACHES BERLIN

Amsterdam, Jan. 29.—Washington's demands for a disavowal of the sinking of the Lusitania are reported in a dispatch from Berlin to have been delivered to the German government on Friday and to have been informally discussed by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, Foreign Secretary von Jagow, Ambassador Gerard and Colonel E. M. House, personal representative of President Wilson, at a dinner given at the American Embassy in Berlin last night.

"It is understood," says the dispatch, "that the arrival of Colonel House in Berlin was so timed that he would be able to make known to the German government the feeling in the United States over the Lusitania incident and also to clear up any point in the American note about which German officials might be in doubt."

The dispatch points out that disavowal of the sinking of the Lusitania would raise the point of whether Germany's entire submarine campaign was illegal and whether in the reckoning when peace is made Germany could be called upon to pay for every merchant ship it has destroyed. If so, the monetary compensation would be enormous, as the Germans claim to have sunk more than 600 ships.

"There is no doubt," the dispatch concludes, "that Germany desires to retain the friendship of America, but if the conditions are made too onerous it will make a firm decision."

Denies Fixing Time Limit on Disavowal

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 29.—After refusing at first to discuss the report that the United States has demanded that Germany specifically disavow the sinking of the Lusitania not later than February 5 next, Secretary of State Lansing reconsidered his determination and denied the report. He said:

"There is absolutely nothing to this story."

That was all the Secretary would say about the matter for publication, but he made it plain that he has not made any engagement to see Count von Bernstorff in the immediate future and probably will not do so until the latter hears from Berlin.

BERNSTORFF HAS NO WORD.

At the German embassy today it was said that so far no response has been received by the ambassador and that none was looked for before next Tuesday at the earliest. Officials in the absence of Count von Bernstorff were inclined to find a connection between the revived "submarine crisis" and the preparedness campaign of President Wilson thinking it the Middle West which began in Pittsburgh today. Secretary Lansing declined to talk about the matter. He said that the conferences between himself and the German ambassador were of a confidential nature and that he could not "discuss speculative stories predicated on opinion rather than knowledge."

The possibility that Germany may decide to reject the demand of the United States that it disavow the sinking of the Lusitania is understood to have been discussed by the Secretary and President Wilson. They are believed to have mapped out a course of action to be followed in that event. It is naturally assumed that refusal by Germany to agree to President Wilson's view would throw the entire submarine problem back to where it started, and might necessitate a breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany. But official's say that at present at least there is no immediate prospect of such conditions prevailing.

"BRITISH RETREAT" SAY BERLIN PAPERS

Berlin, Jan. 29, by wireless to Sayville.—"Only brief comments have been made so far by the Berlin press on the recent decision by the British to postpone the enforcement of a strict blockade against Germany," says the Overseas News Agency. "All the newspapers declare this to be an American diplomatic victory. The general tone of the comments is best characterized by the headline in the Vossische Zeitung: 'British retreat before America.'"

ROXBURY BABY CLUBBED TO DEATH

fatal. Arline died at 4:30 a. m. today. From the marks on the child and the note signed with the boy's name the police wonder if the lad is afflicted with the same mania for torturing and killing children as Jesse Pomeroy, the notorious "lifer" at Charlestown State Prison.

Young Craft was last seen late last night on Ruggles street in Roxbury. He had secured a loaded revolver and said he was going to get out of town. He showed the weapon to one or more and was ordered out.

A general alarm has been sent out for Craft. The South and West End pawnshop keepers have been instructed to notify the police immediately if a lad of Craft's description is seen by them.

The pawnshop trail is being followed because the police think Craft may try to sell the revolver, or a safety razor he showed, in order to get money.

SEARCH DELAYED.

Search for Craft did not get under way until after 10 o'clock last night, because the injuries to Baby Arline were not discovered until then. He returned home at 9:30 from Hough's Neck. She called a physician, who notified the police. Inquiry led to immediate search for Craft.

The police learned that Craft passed along Ruggles street in the evening, showing a loaded revolver to some other boys. He was put out of a store for flourishing the weapon.

Later he was seen again on Ruggles street. This time he tried to sell a safety razor to another boy for a quarter, saying "I want to sell it. I have got to get out of town." He did not get it. So the police think he might resort to a pawnshop.

Craft was regarded by the Kerns as a trustworthy boy, although he had been at Rainsford Island School for a while. He has been, going to the public schools and liked to visit his aunt, Mrs. Kern. He also let him take care of her two children, two-year-old Arline and four-year-old Andrew at times.

The Kern family had a Boston terrier at home. The terrier is missing. Craft had no dog with him on Ruggles street last night. The police think he may have sold or otherwise disposed of the dog.

The only characteristic of the boy that has come to police attention in their quiet inquiry about him is a fascination for moving pictures of the so-called "thriller" type.

Medical Examiner Learv, who viewed the baby's body at the Kern house this morning, ordered the body to the City Hospital morgue, where he planned to perform an autopsy. Dr. Leary has the coroner's duties in Mrs. Kern, but is witholding his exact contents.

BOY A FREQUENT VISITOR.

The act attributed by the police to Craft is utterly inexplicable to the parents of the baby. The father of Arline said today that Harold Craft and visited them often and always seemed all right.

The father, Andrew J. Kern, is employed at the Tollgate Inn at Forest Hills. His family consisted of himself and wife and the two children, with Harold Craft visiting the house often, sometimes for two or three weeks. The boy attended school and appeared normal.

Yesterday Mrs. Kern arranged to visit relatives in Hough's Neck. Harold was on one of his visits to the house, so she felt confident in leaving the boy in charge of the baby girl and the older brother.

The father works evenings. Mrs. Kern on returning noticed the front door was opened, and then observed that Harold and the family dog, a Boston terrier, were gone. The mother hurried upstairs to see if the children were all right.

The mother found both children in bed undressed and apparently asleep. She noticed immediately that Baby Arline was restless, as she thought. But she could not rouse the girl. Examination revealed body bruises. The boy told her Harold hit Arline with a stick.

Alarmed at the strange state of affairs, the mother telephoned to Dr. F. P. Drew of East Dedham and to her husband. Dr. Drew said today:

"I found numerous bruises on the baby's body. Evidently her head was struck, too, although no outside marks showed. But she showed signs of concussion of the brain. Arline died at 4:30 a. m. today. The cause of death is for the medical examiner to decide, but I think it may have been from the concussion of the brain. I notified the West Roxbury police after I had examined the baby and talked with the mother.

SAY CHILD CLUBBED TO DEATH.

Sergeant Waugh came to the house from West Roxbury police station and began investigation. As a result of his report a general alarm was sent out for Craft, with description of the lad. Craft is sixteen years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighs 115 pounds. At the Kern place yesterday he wore a brown suit and black shoes and stockings. He had a checked cap when he wore from the house.

Captain Bowley said:

"I have taken personal charge of the case and am waiting for a report from Medical Examiner Leary. Sergeant Waugh will make application to the District Court for a murder warrant against Craft."

The captain was asked if there was a question about the baby having been stabbed or about her death having been caused by a clubbing.

"No question about it," he replied.

"The Montenegrin delegates desire to begin peace negotiations as soon as possible, since this would have a quieting influence on the population."

In paragraph No. 2, the news agency continues, the Montenegrins authorized the Austro-Hungarian army to continue military operations in Montenegro and promised to lend all possible assistance to the Austro-Hungarian army by furnishing them food and water, means of transportation and housing for the troops. 'OLD IRONSIDES' AIDS IN TAKING FRENCH SHIP

CHAPTER VI.

The fact that the French ship which Commodore Talbot wished to capture was protected by the batteries of a fort above her and by all of her own guns, which had been placed on the seaward side, made the expedition extremely hazardous.

Ward Lieutenant Isaac Hull, who was put in charge of the sloop Sally and the expedition, called for volunteers, ninety brave seamen came to his side.

The Sally sailed into the harbor in broad daylight, without a shot being fired.

While the Sandwich was being captured and her crew made prisoners, eight picked men waded ashore in water up to their necks, scaled the walls of the fort and spiked the guns before the commander had time to recollect or prepare for defence.

CREW'S EXPLOIT WINS PRAISE.

Although the French ship, which had been "stripped to her waist," so to her lower masts, had to be rigged, the American sailors, nothing daunted, set about their work, and by sunset sailed out of the harbor without a man killed or injured.

Commodore Talbot was immensely pleased with this exploit of the men from "Old Ironsides," who had shown themselves worthy of manning the new navy's fleest frigate.

In a letter he wrote to Washington he said:

"Perhaps no enterprise of the same moment was ever better executed."

The sequel to this exploit was far from glorious and came as a sad disappointment to sailors and commanders alike.

The capture was wholly illegal, as the United States had no quarrel with Spain, for whom France, the French ship lay, nor had war actually been declared with France.

The United States, therefore, returned the Sandwich and all the prize money which the Constitution carried on her cruise went to pay damages.

Some justification has been found for Commodore Talbot on the grounds that Spain had shown herself far from neutral in her friendly relations with France, and had often given her armored ships harbourage and supplies.

HELPS PROTECT COMMERCE.

The Constitution was instrumental at this time in protecting a large proportion of American commerce, and Commodore Talbot was highly praised by eminent American character to be respected as it had not been before.

After a treaty of peace had been concluded with France in 1801 the Constitution was recalled to the Boston Navy Yard, where it was dismantled and the crew paid off and dismissed.

For nearly three years the United States Frigate lay on commission, and not until the depredations of the Barbary pirates—corsairs—and the insolence of the Dey of Tripoli had gone beyond all bounds was she again pressed into service

Gala Entry List for Season's First Indoor Meet—Caldwell and Halpin Booked to Clash

WITH thirty-four events listed, some of them closed to members of military organizations, Boston's indoor track season starts off with a bang tonight in the South State Armory, Irvington street.

Included among the entries, which total over 400, are the leaders in track and field sport in Massachusetts, as well as some stars with national reputations.

The Coast Artillery Corps has arranged a rotating good program of events. Members of the cantonment, in fact, sport lovers in general, should be interested in the wall scaling event and rescue race limited to members of the Coast Artillery Corps.

Chief interest will centre in the 600-yard run for the handsome trophy donated by Colonel Pfaff. The cup has been contested for the last two years and each time Tom Haiplh, the M. A. A. flyer, won it. Should Halpin repeat tonight the trophy will become his permanent possession.

CALDWELL TO OPPOSE HALPIN.

Needless to state, Halpin will have a hard row to hoe to win. However, the path to victory isn't a perfect bed of roses for among his aspirants appears Dave Caldwell, winner of the Millrose 600-yard special in the big New York race. Halpin also started and finished a bad fifth. Among the others whom Caldwell bested was Ted Meredith, the University of Pennsylvania star.

In addition to Caldwell and Halpin, the B. A. A. will be represented by "Bill" Hoanik, the cantonment huddles champion, and S. D. Rose. Meanix can be relied upon to push whoever happens to be in front of him, and it wouldn't be at all surprising if Halpin's record of 1:18 4-5 was smashed. Other starters are Donahue, Biddle, Bingham and Minot of Harvard, and Joe Higgins, Mathonez and Reilly of Holy Cross.

Caldwell is also entered in the half mile run. The handicapper has placed him on scratch, with Mahoney and Rose, clubmates, at 20 and 40 yards, respectively. Donahue of Harvard and Jimmy Power, running unattached, are on the limit mark. The rate should be between three cracks, though it is possible some of the men on the higher mark may get away fast and stay in front.

Though Caldwell has entered the quarter, and been placed on scratch, there is no telling that he will be starting in that event. But by chance he should start it will mean a world's competition. Ted Meredith, of Harvard, with four yards in front of him, will be the only man in front of him are Meanix and Rose, B. A. A.; Minot, Harvard, and Kelly, Holy Cross. Pennsylvania or Harvard has six yards.

GOOD FIELD IN THE MILE.

Brown, Technology and Mahoney, B. A. A., are the scratch men in the one-mile run. Jimmy Power, the old B. A. A. star, is handicapped at 10 yards, as is Joe Loscalzo, Irish American A. C. Between these men the field in this race is ninety yards.

Irving Hoffman, of Harvard, and is affiliated with the Boston Y. M. C. A., is a scratch man in the 70-yard dash, and has a good field to go through and win. The record for the event is 8 1-5 seconds, made by Ted Marble, Seventh Company, Coast Artillery Corps, in 1918. Theodore, Harvard, has a mark and should be in the race right up to the final heat. Loscalzo, Tech, who beat Hoffman in the Millrose games is not entered.

Barry Barstow, the B. A. A. high hurdler, is a scratch man, and Ralph Pelletier, St. John's Prep, handicapped at nine inches.

Test for Harvard Team To Battle McGill Stars

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

TEN husky young Canadian athletes—members of the McGill University seven of Montreal—arrived in Boston this morning for a hockey clash tonight with the Harvard varsity at the Arena. They went directly to the Copley Square Hotel, and, after breakfast, were given an automobile ride through the suburbs.

At noon they will assemble at the Arena for a workout on the big surface where they hope to repeat their performance of last year against the Crimson.

One at Cambridge it would indeed be hero to continue a member of the undergraduate body that the varsity team will lose to McGill. Harvard's win over Princeton in New York last Saturday night did more to solidify the support of the Crimson rooters than any other happening this season.

Local fans will remember that in last Wednesday night's game, "Shorty" Mann, the Canadian goal tender, established a record of eight shut-out stops. Mann won't be here tonight, inasmuch as he has graduated, but his place the "rooters" will see "Sug" Scott.

SCOTT BEARS WATCHING.

This is Scott's first year as a senior player and he enjoys the reputation of being the sensation in Canadian amateur circles. The battle between Scott and Jack Wylde should be well worth watching.

An overweight McGill has "Dink" Madden, a protege of Father Stanislaus Lenihan, the reverend gentleman at Ottawa College. Madden is considered the best defence man that ever played for the Ottawa.

In Gus Doty, he will be opposed by a player worthy of any man's steel. Physically, Doty may be a chubby, but he's a bear at hockey. Whatsmobile, the point, is in his first year at McGill and came from Smith Falls, Canada, where he played in the International league.

Captain Pat Rooney, the rover, has been playing hockey for fifteen years, in fact, all his life. He is a fine skater and a grand stickhandler.

McGILL'S TWO STRONG WINGS.

Rooney and George Percy should indulge in some merry exchanges. Claude Perkins, the centre, was declared at Lower Canada College and is rated as a fine player, though this is his first year in McGill senior circles.

The wings, "Pinky" Andrews at right and McCullough at left, are a capable pair. Both are fine shots, fast skaters and clever stickhandlers. In Thatcher and "Pop" Morgan of Harvard, they will be opposed by a pair of fast and clever stickhandlers who will make them hustle to get by.

For extra men the skating squad includes Hibbard, a spare defence man; Ross, a spare centre man, and is enjoying his first year with the senior squad, and Dr. Wilson, a fast and steady performer. Jacques and Gibbs are the spare forwards.

McGill comes to Boston heralded as the almost certain collegiate champions of Canada. Should they succeed in losing the Cardinals, Sinclair stated the price sought by the Bolsheviki would be, while short of ridiculous, too steep strongly that if the figure was reached he might purchase.

'TIS SOME BIG BATTLE.

Consequently, tonight's battle assumes the importance of an unofficial championship game. Harvard Club and M. A. A.

The other two Boston teams which engage in games tonight are the Harvard Club and M. A. A. The former seven plays an Amateur Hockey League game with St. Nicholas A. C. at the St. Nicholas rink, New York, while M. A. A. journeys to New Haven for its game with Yale. Skating will not play, but H. A. A. should win easily.

DUFFY TRYING TO SELL CLUB TO LORD

Portland, Me., Jan. 29.—Hugh Duffy has offered the Portland baseball club to Harry Lord, the Red Sox's old third baseman and a Federal League star last season, for $12,000. Lord considers the figure quite a distance over the limit, if he can, but may buy if Duffy comes down. Lord claims he has an financial guarantee as manager of the Buffalo Feds and looks for somebody to pay him his salary next Summer should he not be picked up.

2 School Marks Fractured by H. S. Boys

Two school and track records were fractured at yesterday's dual meet between Huntington School and Moses Brown school.

In the 2nd-yard run Marline won by himself in 25 1-5 seconds, equalling the record made by Charles Zeigler last year. In the relay race, each man covering two laps, the Huntington School quartet lowered the Y. M. C. A. team record of 2 minutes 19 seconds to 2 minutes 17 2-5 seconds.

Marling won the dash from Reynolds of Moses Brown in a stirring finish. Gerton, the national interscholastic 880-yarder, won the 1,000-yard run in fast time. Shinn, the old Medford High captain, pressed him hard.

The hurdles went to Delehanty of Huntington, who had to go in close to record time to dispose of Reynolds of Moses Brown.

SINCLAIR OFF FOR CALL ON BRITTONS

New York, Jan. 29.—Harry Sinclair, manager of the defunct Federal League, considers himself well enough to hit out for his home at Tulsa, Okla., for a few days' golfing and early evening trade. Sinclair will step off in St. Louis, in fact, he must pass through there, and will be looked for by the Cardinals. Sinclair stated the price sought by the Bolsheviki would be, while short of ridiculous, too steep strongly that if the figure was reached he might purchase.

M'HALE HOT AFTER WAGNER AS PILOT

Worcester, Jan. 29.—Heinie Wagner, the Red Sox's former captain, spent the day here in consultation with Paul McHale, the new owner of the Worcester (New England League) club. McHale wants Wagner to go on the job as manager, but "Heinie" demurred from doing without coming to any decision in the matter. McHale thinks that Wagner is the right extreme limit in acquiring Wagner and hopes to induce him to sign.

SHEAN GETS OFFER TO COMMAND GRAYS

William H. Draper, the new owner of the Portland, Me., entry in the Federal League Club, visited Dave Shean in Boston yesterday and made him an offer to coach the club next year. Shean has Draper's offer under advisement. It is thought an all other Dave will sign the proffered contract at an early date so he can start to get matters in readiness for the coming season.

YALE FENCERS SHINE.

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 29.—Yale's fencing team defeated Springfield Y. M. C. A. College in their dual meet 9-0.

If you have any German friends and wish to please them, order a copy of the Deutsches Journal (New York City) 50th Anniversary Edition to be sent to each of them. Out Jan. 20th, 1916. Send anywhere in U. S. in the "Big Edition". Order now while you have it in mind.—Advt.

L. Page Wanted to Buy the Red Sox

L. C. Page, the Boston publisher and a former stockholder in the Boston (National League) club, has offered Joseph J. Lannin $500,000 for the Red Sox. The firm of J. S. Oler & Co. will finance the deal if Mr. Page succeeds in acquiring the World's Champions, Mr. Page said today.

Mr. Lannin states that the offer does not interest him at all; that it is not anywhere near the figure he seeks if he is to sell and get out of baseball.

"I have seen Mr. Page and his representatives this week and told them that if their offered me $750,000 for my ball club I might close with them," said Mr. Lannin. "While I have never entertained the notion of selling, every man has his price, and if Mr. Page can see his way clear to meet my figures he will acquire the club.

Mr. Page is anxious to get back into baseball and is especially anxious to secure control of the Red Sox. He has made his offer of $500,000 in good faith and has the assurance of the firm of J. S. Oler & Co. he claims, that it will finance the deal and close it up in a hurry. Mr. Lannin will not accept the $500,000 offered, or if Mr. Page succeeds in driving a bargain and buying a proposition for $750,000 he will feel like accepting.

As matters stand today, it is exactly $500,000 standing between owner and bidder, with the owner declaring he will not come down and the bidder figuring just how much further he will press his offer.

Mr. Lannin stated today that all Winter long he has been seen on the average of at least one, possibly a prospective purchaser and that aside from selling Mr. Page, when they met at a downtown hotel Wednesday night, that his price for his holdings would not change, that he has not talked "real business" with any of the contemplated buyers.

Mr. Lannin, while not accepting Mr. Page's sincerity in his endeavor to re-enter baseball, does not believe the Boston publisher will meet his terms. As the Red Sox owner is not contemplating parting with his baseball club—just yet.

FED PLAYER LANDS WITH HERZOG CLAN

Cincinnati, Jan. 29.—Infielder William Louden of the Buffalo Feds has been bought by President Herrmann of the locals. The purchase price was not made public. Louden batted .294 clip in 137 games last season, scored sixty-seven runs and stole twenty-nine bases.

HARVARD PERSONALS

THE presence of Captain John Morgan in the varsity's hockey lineup tonight against McGill is extremely dubious. Morgan is suffering with a heavy cold and may be forced to lay off.

MANAGER KNIGHT hopes to continue Manager Trimble he should bring Hobey Baker and his St. Nicks over for a game in the Arena next month. Harvard beat the "Saint Clairers," 4-3, overtime, last February and would like to have an opportunity to repeat.

THE St. Nicks, on the other hand, would like to meet the Crimson New York February 19, the date set for the third Harvard game with the Tigers, if the series went beyond the all, which it didn't.

THE Arena, in announcing a Harvard Club-St. Nicholas game for March 4, is looking ahead with a spirit more optimistic than held by Harvard men. The Arena is going to stage the deciding game of the series, and the date is one of the clash soca beyond the two-game stage.

JUNIOR SWIMMERS CLASH WEEK HENCE

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 29.—The annual Eastern interscholastic swimming championship meet takes place next Saturday. Its success is assured, as entries have been received from Bronxville High School, Andover, Worcester Academy, Hamden Polly Prep, Dewitt Clinton School and Hamilton Institute.

NOTED CUEIST EXPIRES.

John N. Kammerer, father-in-law of the late "Jake" Schaefer, the famous billiardist, died in Chicago this week. He was in his eightieth year and for forty years had been identified with billiards.

D. H. PLAYS SOMERVILLE.

Dorchester High landed victor over Somerville High in their track meet, 43 to 39. It took the relay event to win for Dorchester.

Stallings Fails to Find Herr. Garry Home

Cincinnati, Jan. 29.—Manager Stallings of the Reds made the trip home from his home at Haddock, Ga., in vain, as he not only failed to find President Herrmann of the Reds in the city, but learned Garry would not return before next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Stallings came here to close the deal for Catcher Ivy Wingo, it is pretty generally understood. He is not sure whether he will wait for Herrmann to get back home or return to Stony Georgia and make a later visit.

Asked what truth there was in the report that he wanted to trade Johnny Evers for Heine Zimmerman, Stallings merely smiled and said he wished to be excused from making any comment.

EXETER NINE CUTS UP IN CAGE MONDAY

Exeter, N. H., Jan. 29.—Coach Carney of the Phillips Exeter baseball team has issued a call to the battery candidates to report for work in the cage Monday afternoon. Ray Hall, of West Newton, Mass.; L. E. Goley, a former Nashua High star; Noyes, last year's varsity catcher, and Capt. W. P. Donnelly of Butte, Mont., are some of the men Carney will try to work into Comerford's shoes. Captain Peters will take care of the relay candidates with J. P. Gilmore of Marlboro as second-string catcher.

HAMMILL STAR OF MEET.

Lynn English High won the honors in its dual track meet with Cambridge Latin, 51 to 31. Hammill of Lynn hung up a new track record in the 1,000-yard run; 2 minutes 42 seconds.

PHAIR VIEWS ON SPORTS

It is rumored in pugilistic circles that Jess Willard may meet Al Reich. Having traveled several months with a circus, Jess has become a humorist.

Willard's affairs are being handled these days by the Jack Curley-Harry Pollok-Tom Jones combination. In diplomatic parlance it might be called the triple cross.

TWO DAYS.

An old bloke named Adam or Alexander or Hannibal or Caesar or Napoleon or Jesse James or somebody, once remarked that a man makes his own opportunities. An opportunity must be first cousin to a baseball story, to wit:

Chicago, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Mortimer Sparin, the original first baseman of the Keokuk Browns, will play the initial sack for the Blue Sox this season. Sparin has everything and then considerable more. As a fielder he makes Hal Chase look like a wooden Indian. He can dig them out of the ground or out of the air and can spear them on bolts with equal facility.

Sparin's real strength, however, will be felt in the hitting department. He batted .500 in Idaho on a team that once played against Walter Johnson. Walter wasn't pitching that year. He got cold feet three years before and went to Washington.

With the acquisition of Sparin, the Blue Sox infield is all set for the season. "There is nothing to it," said Manager Runyon today. "With that infield I can't lose."

Keokuk, Minn., Jan. 29.—Mortimer Sparin, an infielder drafted by the Blue Sox, has been turned back to the Browns.

"Golf," writes Jerome Travers, "is a costlier game than ball." But he can't convince Harry Sinclair.

Golf is an exhausting game, especially when you have to listen to a dub who once holed a 12-foot putt.

Arlington Youth Is Lafayette's Strong Man

Easton, Pa., Jan. 29.—George H. Lowe, Jr., of Arlington, Mass., a former Exeter athlete and one of Lafayette's 1919 heroes on the gridiron last Fall, is the strong man of the freshman class. This finding was the result of a scientific anthropometric examination given by Harold A. Bruce of Boston, who is director of physical training at the local school.

According to the results at Lowe's test, if he could concentrate all of the power in his forearms, shoulders, back and legs at a single point, it would be sufficient to lift a weight of 2,965 pounds. The average strength of the entire class reduced to the same formula equals only 1,000 pounds.

In the tests Everett W. Clough of Middleboro, Mass., a classmate of Exeter, was numbered among the first ten. The test showed a total force of 1,874 pounds.

ART ROBERTS STAR OF NEWTON GAMES

Arthur Roberts broke his own high jump record at Newton High in the interclass Meet, by going over the bar at 5 feet 10¾ inches. Roberts also increased the honors over the hurdles and in the 50-yard. Brown, a freshman, held a 5-foot lead in the latter, Brown did 5 feet 9½ inches in the high jump, which is ¼ inches over his own height.

FIVE OLD CUBS ARE SLATED TO DEPART

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Manager Joe Tinker of the Cubs is preparing to let go Pitchers Zabel, Humphries and Pierce. The latter two are likely will all land in the National League. In fact, St. Louis is already in with a big bid for Pierce. Cincinnati and Jack Murray are two others slated to walk the gangplank.

MACK HAS HONORS IN GO

Beachmont Boy Boxes Beautifully, Bunches Body Blows, and Bags Bout with Lustig.

B. M. A. A. RESULTS.

Frankie Mack, Beachmont, defeated Johnny (Young) Lustig, New York; twelve rounds, Spley number and right boy named.

Joe Farren defeated "Patsy" De Lucca, eight rounds. Smacked of a draw.

"Skip" Lee defeated Young O'Neill; six rounds. Fair bout and boys well together.

FRANKIE MACK, the Beachmont lightweight, as cleanly framed an athlete as New England ever started after honors in the Queensberry sport, worked like a little gamecock during the entire life of his twelve-round number with Johnny (Young) Lustig, the skilled ditto experienced New York 135-pounder in the windup event at the Business Men's A. A. show, Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, last night and well merited the decision Referee Larry Conley bestowed upon him.

Mack traveled on high the thirty-six minutes the bout lasted, was never in any danger of being rocked to sleep, though clearly marked up worse than Lustig at the close; gained a clean knockdown in the first chapter, did the bulk of the forcing and was in front by a fairly wide margin when the curtain came down.

At that, it takes two to make a bout, and true give a show and Lustig must not be overlooked. It was simply the old story—youth must be served. Mack is a veritable broiler in comparison to Lustig. Johnny is next to all ring etiquette, nep to all ring tricks. He fought his best and skilled when tired, trying to draw on his youthful ten call to his fullest capacity. Even standing room was at a premium long before the show started. Promoter Bennett's three preliminaries were very so-so; Conley again ran the ring in admirable fashion, and, all in all, the show was a sparkling success.

Mack was a picture when he stripped and took his corner. The reception afforded Master Frankie was lavish in the extreme. It was the good, soulful, spontaneous cheering some old Matty Baldwin used to receive when he was in his prime, and when he went on for a big combat. It looked as if Mack was giving away quite a bundle of weight. Lustig is one of the ring men whose shape is of the pudgy sort. Hence, he looks big—and flabby. But mayhaps he was in on a heftier lightweight.

Right from the outset did the two little battling machines come together. For the first minute it was all Mack. Frankie was in to show greater Boston fans that he is no flash-in-the-pan and that as this section needs a new lightweight defender he's the boy to do the honors. The canto was barely a minute old before a snappy left to Lustig's jaw sent Johnny to the canvas. He went down full length and was badly dazed, but got up at the count of six.

Right through the two little fellows had it out in hammer and tongs style. Never was there any loafing. No, we doubt if Mack owns a sure-enough, hope-to-die slave. Lustig personally doesn't, that was proven long ago. But so far as willingness and the accompanying action is concerned, there was little to be desired.

MACK ALWAYS IN FRONT.

Never was Mack very far ahead of Lustig in fact, the New Yorker showed in front of several of the rounds. But Mack was always a bit the to the good, and so he gained the honors in the last three sessions, Conley's decision was but proper.

In the semi-windup Joe Farren showed for the first time in Boston, being wide and shaded "Patsy" De Lucca. It looked as if a draw verdict would have been given, but the referee's decision went with the general opposition.

Eddie Flynn knew the touch and had Bobby beat for the count. Bob is nothing, nor "nowhere." For all that, he's got a game bunch, though handicapped by a short reach. Then he's game to the backbone. Flynn won his youthful ten call to fame in the second, but the Cambridge boy came right back, and all the rest of the three-round game was a stand-up affair. But he soon fought himself out, and then Eddie came into his own.

For a starter "Kid" Lee of Chelsea got the decision over Young O'Neill of Lynn, but it was a close one. It was close most of the way.

LEVINSKY PUTS IT OVER THE ZULU KID

New York, Jan. 29.—"Battling Levinsky," with an advantage of nearly twenty pounds in weight, easily defeated the Zulu Kid at the Lexington Ave. Casino tonight. In other bouts, Willie Beecher had the better of Frankie Pierce and Al Reich held Marty Cross to a draw.

MISKE HOLDS JACK DILLON TO A DRAW

Superior, Wis., Jan. 29.—Jack Dillon of Indianapolis found "Billy" Miske an unexpectedly tough nut to crack and the best he could claim in a fiercely-contested ten-round bout was a draw. Dillon carried the fighting to Miske most of the way.

ENGLISH HIGH HOOKS ON.

Yale's Committee Recommends Tad Jones, Is Report

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 29—Yale's special football committee, consisting of Mortarick, Thorne and Kilpatrick, last night filed its report with Professor Corwin and Treasurer Day of the university. A special meeting of the Yale A. A. will be called for Monday night to discuss the report. It is rumored that the committee recommended engaging Tad Jones and Michael Sweeney as the head coaches for football and other athletics. The report is being held secret.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

THE Hippodrome will be dark next week, so far as the usual Tuesday night boxing show is concerned.

WHEN George Freeman didn't like the Armory A. A.'s offer for Mike Glover for the Jack Britton booking, or Mike took ill, or whatever it was that really happened, Matchmaker Ivy Lewis went after a new foe for Britton.

MR. LEWIS kept the wires hot for some forty-eight hours, but nothing doing. The boy he particularly sought was Jimmy Murphy, the speedy Philadelphian, who has been holding his own with Hon. Freddie Welsh, Johnny Dundee and the rest of the high-steppers in the lightweight division, so far as six-round skirmishes are concerned, this Winter.

MURPHY has been mingling with the lightweight stars, but that's because they are glad to see Philadelphia with an idol and don't care if they have to give away a few pounds in getting the kale.

YES, Murphy, a right pert fighting machine, is said to be his biggest lightweight in captivity.

WHICH recalls a story they love to tell down in Arkansas. Enter a circus man from Kansas City in search of a giant for his sideshow. He hears about a giant down in the sticks, 'round Argenta, and gets his route into the jungles at Little Rock.

REACHING the diggings where resided the reported giant, Mr. Circusman is flabbergasted, not to say every license to be. Why? 'Cause said giant only stands 4 feet 11 inches.

"YOU'RE a helova giant," said Mr. Circusman. "I know it," replied the Arkansas hill-billy. "I'm the smallest giant in the world."

IT'S that way about Jimmy Murphy. According to all reports, he's more of a welterweight than a lightweight, to which division he is operating, though one of the most promising boxing prospects in the East, for that matter.

TUT LEWIS went after Murphy strong as he wouldn't be giving much, if any, weight to Britton, and the bout doped to be a corker. But nothing doing. Then Lewis went after an all-star show, but Alec McLean announced in the AMERICAN office this morning that all the sought timber wanted entirely too much coin. Hence, the flip will be dark next Tuesday night.

FRANKIE MACK showed a packed house in Roxbury last night that he's a very trim little fighting machine. He beat Johnny Lustig all right, which is quite a feat for such a broiler.

MACK'S old bad eye was further damaged. That's his weak spot and if he thinks he wants a title he is badly bruised. What Frankie wants to do is behave himself and train faithfully. Then will insure his success in his game.

"BOSTONIAN SPORT" writes the AMERICAN from Montreal stating that he thinks we ought to pick too far in our criticism of the Lewiskey-Meisels bouts. He evidently missed it. But at that the windup of his screed is excellently put. However, we beg to state we were not on the job when those bonco artists were performing, so are innocent.

IT'S another good looking show the B. M. A. A. has billed for next Friday night. The principals are "Mickey" Brown and Eddie Campi. Al Shubert should be matched with the winner.

THE "RABBITS" COLUMN

By Walter J. Mecrowville

HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Now that President J. J. Lannin has declared he will not sell his ball club, let's get together and talk about the players. They make the game after all. With local ownership for both teams and each owner working hard to strengthen his team, the fans should feel confident of good results.

* * *

On the heels of the Federal League talk, which corrupted considerable space for two seasons, comes the innocent attempts to sell clubs. I had an idea that Boston was safe from such yarns for a while, but we live to learn.

* * *

President Wilson is not the only prominent person swinging around the circle for preparedness. I notice Manager George is on the rollers, trying to get ammunition in preparation for the 1916 baseball campaign.

* * *

The week of February 7 will be rather eventful in baseball. President Tener has called his league together to clean up unfinished business and go over the 1916 playing schedule. The following day the National League observes its fortieth anniversary by holding a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria. Then there is the Sporting Writers' dinner in Philadelphia the evening following. The National Commission also gets together during the week. Some week!

* * *

All of which points to the fact that time is fleeting and that the boys will soon be down South, hitting them out and telling each other how lame and sore they feel.

* * *

Mr. Charles P. Taft displays considerable pluck in his investigation upon baseball conditions when he claims that Baltimore should have a big league ball club. He took a shy at major league ownership in that town but his books would soon show him the answer.

Whitted, the "Duke of Durham," is a grand ball player—a valuable addition to any major club, if note that Durham pays more money before signing. Well, we all would like more money. The problem is just the same, how to get it.

FULTON IS LUCKY TO WIN

Minnesota Whale Proves Flivver in Scrap with "Porky" Flynn

—Bout Goes Distance.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 29.—Fred Fulton of Rochester, Minn., won a twenty-round decision from Dan (Porky) Flynn of Boston, last night, before 1,200 fans in Tommy Burns' open air arena.

Many of the fans disagreed with Referee Burns' decision, but taking it from all angles it was just, as Fulton landed the greater number of hard blows and dropped Flynn for the count of three in the fourth round.

Fulton's showing was a disappointment to the fight fans and sporting writers, all of whom agreed he will have to fight many a fight before he will be ready to meet Jess Willard.

Fred seemed unable to use his right hand throughout the entire twenty rounds, and depended on his left to jab, uppercut and land long-arm punches. Then, his ring generalship needs schooling, as Flynn made Fulton look like a dewee when there was any fighting to do.

Fulton claimed he was fouled near the end of the fourth round. Both fighters were mixing it very fast, and Flynn was having all the advantage in the infighting when Fulton suddenly sunk to his knee on the floor and pressed his hands to his body. He seemed to have been hit low—or was hurt.

Referee Burns made a hurried examination and told Fulton he had not seen any low blow struck and ordered him up. Fulton jumped up as if nothing had happened and went on with the battle, which lasted twenty seconds to go.

While Fulton did not make the showing that was expected of him, He showed he has the making of possible championship caliber, but needs more schooling in the finer points of the game.

Little Bobbie's Pa

As an Explorer He Certainly Succeeds in Astounding a Scientist

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MA'S unkel was up to the house last nite, he is a grate explorer & he has jest calm back from Pattygony.

Well, old sport, sed Pa, jest as if he had known Ma's unkel all his life, how did you leave everything down in old Pattygony?

I beg pardon, sed Ma's unkel, his naim is Professor Black.

I sed how did you leeve all the gay dogs in Pattygony.

There are very few speechies of dogs in Pattygony, sed Professor Black. I am not interested in canines. I saw sum interesting vulpines, however. One specahles is particularly ferosh us.

That's jest what I like, sed Pa. Give me a ferosh us vulpine for a pet any time. I like to take them. I spose you shot a lot of partridges in Pattygony.

I dident see any, sed the professor. I was down there looking for the grate sole, wich I do not believe is yet extinct, no matter what the scientists say.

I doant believe it either, I sed. I shot one yesterday with my new gun, a chicken sole.

The Professor began to laff & sed My deer littel man, that is a hawk, ha-ha-ha. The Sole is different.

Certainly, sed Pa. The N is silent, as in Cincinnaty. I shud have been along with you on that trip, Prof. There are few stranger, wild places on this planet ware my footsteps have not been.

So you, too, have been in the far places, sed the Professor.

Oh yes sed Pa. Befour I settled down & made a fortune in the printing bizness I was seldom in one place long at a time. It was funny how I kep leeping from state to state, from continent to continent.

Is that so? sed the professor. That is indeed interesting.

Yes indeed, sed Pa. The sheriff often spoke about me & my roaming nature.

Did you happen, wile in Pattygony, to see any of the odd littel lizards called the Spikeface?

Did I? sed Pa. Why, I had one for a pet. It used to walk me every morning. I can fele that spike yet, sed Pa. Naterally it got very much attached to me & I was going to bring it hoam with me, but it got anthrax & sum complicashuns set in & it breethed its last, the poor littel thing. It cried wen I todd it Beth was cumming.

They are very affeckshunate, sed the Professor.

But the most interesting littel animale in Pattygony, sed Pa, is, to my mind, the barking flea. They do not care for the natives, but have a sort of wistful affeckshun, Pa sed, for a good looking white man. I had several of them at one time & found it very hard to git rid of them.

They wasent so bad wen they kep quiet, but wen they was disturbed they made a noize like a the bloodhounds after Elisa.

I dident come in contack with them, sed the Professor. It is funny that while I was down there I dident hear about yure expedishun.

It was a very gumshoe affair, sed Pa. I dident cair to have my exack whare-abouts known at that time, eeven to my close frends. I figgerd that I was on the verge of a discovery that wud dumfound Science & I todd it. I found the Tongue-Tied wimmen of the lost tribe of the Amazons. Not one of them cud say a word, the divine creetur. While a guest of that tribe, sed Pa, I spent the only reely peeceful moment I have known since I married this niece of yures.

After the Professor was gone Pa went rite to bed & Ma dident git a chanst to skold him.

Longevity of Hymn Writers

Many of Most Famous Lived Past Eighty Mark

THERE appears a certain assurance of longevity to hymn writers—at least it is a fact that many of them lived to a ripe old age. Fanny Crosby, the blind author of "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," one of the most popular hymns ever written, lived to be ninety-five.

Mrs. Jemima Luke, who wrote probably the best-known children's hymn in the world, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old," reached the age of ninety. The author, a man this time, who wrote its nearest rival, "There's a Friend for Little Children," died a year or two since at eighty-eight, and the authoress of "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," lived to a great age.

Charlotte Elliott, who wrote "Just as I Am," and Mrs. Coutts, who penned "The Sands of Time Are Sinking," both lived to be eighty-two. Mrs. Alexander, the famous author of "There Is a Green Hill," reached seventy-seven, whilst Harriet Auber, the authoress of "Our Blest Redeemer," died one year short of ninety.

Whittier, who has enriched real literature with some splendid hymns, died at eighty-five; Charles Wesley, the author of "Hark the Herald Angels," at eighty, and his still more famous brother, John, who made some of the finest hymn translations in the language, at eighty-eight.

James Montgomery, who wrote "Sow in the Morn Thy Seed," died at eighty-three; Thomas Binney, who composed "Eternal Light," lived to be seventy-eight; Cardinal Newman, whose splendid hymn, "Lead Thou Me On" and "Praise to the Holiest," have a world-wide reputation, reached the age of eighty-nine, and Dr. Bonar attained his eighty-first year.

It is said of Albert Midlane, the author of "There's a Friend for Little Children," already mentioned, that he wrote hymns at such an early age that his father and mother and all his uncles and aunts prognosticated his early death, on the maxim that the good die young. Yet he attained eighty-nine birthdays!

Leap Year!

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

OH, lovely snowman with twig-whiskers, now while the sun is shining on your frozen heart, before the cold blue shadows settle on your breast and your brief, soft hour is over, come, be my love! You I would rather have than any live and troublous beau. For I can love and leave you! And still can always find you. And when you shrink and shrink, as you must do, and as all wise maids know—ANY man must also do when once we have him, why, then I swift can build another one and in another style!

And sure as swift as ever you vanish under the kiss of the sun, just that speedily can I forget you. For the snow falls white and often on the spots where stood snowmen! But oh, snowman, lean to my soft guitar and be my love—until the Spring!—NELL BRINKLEY.

The Search for Another World

Astronomers Believe There Is an Undiscovered Planet Beyond Neptune

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just received a book written in a language which few comprehend, more difficult for the uninitiated to decipher than Egyptian or Mayan hieroglyphics; a book which few will buy, though the generosity of its author will put it in the hands of all who can presumably make some meaning out of it; a book whose subject is as lofty as the highest stature of the mind, and whose publication, in the midst of the red glare now blinding humanity, is a credit to our race.

Its title is "Memoir on a Trans-Neptunian Planet," its author is Percival Lowell, and it constitutes the first number of the first volume of the memoirs of the Lowell Observatory, an institution devoted to the scientific revelation of worlds.

Never mind its symbolic language; its subject anybody can understand. It is the question of the existence of a ninth great planet, circling around the sun in a path so remote that even the mighty telescopes of today cannot hope to discover it unless mathematics can direct their aim, as it now directs the fire of the great guns in Europe.

NEW PLANETS.

There is one point about this search for new planets which needs to be cleared up to begin with. Astronomers understand it, but the general public does not. Every little while we hear of the finding of a "new planet."

All of these reports, when verified, relate to the discovery of bodies ordinarily called "asteroids," or "minor planets," which are minute in size, frequently not more than ten or twenty miles in diameter, and hundreds of which are known, and thousands of which probably exist, travelling around the sun in a kind of procession between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter.

Whether they are "fragments of an exploded world," as some have conjectured, or a scattered ring of small bodies that were never collected into a full-sized planet, we do not yet know, but, at any rate, they are too insignificant in size to be regarded as "worlds."

The mysterious "trans-Neptunian planet," i. e., planet beyond Neptune, whose existence has long been suspected by astronomers, is a body of an entirely different order. It may possibly be the greatest of all the planets belonging to the sun, more gigantic than Jupiter itself, although the chances seem to be at present that it will turn out to have a size perhaps less than a hundred times that of the earth.

ENORMOUS DIFFICULTIES

No detective story can compare in the ingenuity and difficulties of the methods employed with the history of the astronomical search for this vagrant of space, turning about the outskirts of the solar system like an Indian concealed among the shadows surrounding a campfire in the forest.

Sometimes a comet, coming in from afar to visit the sun, has been interrogated before a mathematical court-martial concerning what it has met beyond the picket line, but comets are noted and uncommunicative and tell as little as they can. Still, occasionally one has betrayed signs of having encountered something suspiciously like a bulging planet loitering between the ring and Neptune, but the revelations have always been too discreetly to lead to any discovery.

Lucily the astronomers possess an instrument of detection more delicate than any secret telephone in their mathematical theory of perturbations, and by means of this they have good hopes of ultimate success. Just as the most cunning and noiseless of house-breakers might betray his presence to an ear of extraordinary acuteness by the mere sound of his breathing, so a big planet, stealing through the interstellar night, may be revealed by the effects of its gravitation acting upon the other planets of the astronomical body can no more help attracting everything around it than a man can help breathing.

A NOTABLE INSTANCE.

This "method of perturbations" has already served the astronomers a good turn in the discovery, seventy years ago, of Neptune itself, for that planet, at present our outermost sentinel, was found through the effects of its attraction upon Uranus, then the most distant known member of the solar system. In a similar manner it is hoped that the suspected planet beyond Neptune will betray itself through its disturbing attraction.

But the delicacy of the observations required as a basis for such calculations, and the intricacy of the mathematical operations needed to interpret the observations, surpass anything that ordinary human efforts make known to us. Mr. Lowell, in the book that I have described, has recorded the results thus far obtained by himself in an attack upon this great problem, which is as worthy of admiration as any feat of the knights errant of old, who went through the world never hesitating to undertake the most desperate venture if only it could serve the cause of knighthood and humanity. The deliteerent planet has not yet been found — but its ascent has been caught!

Do You Know That—

The English "Pritchard Millions" property, which led to a raid on a burial vault in search of documentary evidence, is now valued at $5,000,000, and included 1,000 acres of freehold land, properties at Rigi and Aberjona, ten plantations in India, and mineral rights in Demidoff's land in Finland.

When frightened, rabbits do not cry out, but stamp several times on the ground with their hind feet, making a sound which can be heard a long way off. This is the passage signal to their fellow rabbits, who scamper off to safety as fast as they can.

The largest yolcanic crater in the world is in Assame, in southern Japan. It measures fourteen miles across one way and more than ten miles the other.

The law in Switzerland protecting rare plants is so strict that to be found in possession of specimens illegitimately collected is a penal offence.

According to one authority, a woman's feet should be to her height in the proportion of fourteen to one hundred—that is, as nearly as possible one-seventh of the height.

Many of the stores in Petrograd have before the doors pictorial representations of the goods of sale inside.

The taste for frog eating is increasing in this country; last year six million frogs were placed on the markets of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Anecdotes of the Famous

SIR RIDER HAGGARD, the famous novelist, was once visiting a cattle show.

Coming upon a particularly fine, fat beast, he somewhat rashly undertook to guess its weight correctly.

Immediately a little cockney, who was standing by, exclaimed:

"Bet you a sovereign I can guess as near as you can!"

"Done!" replied the distinguished author. "I guess 1,624 pounds. How much do you say?"

"I guess the same," answered the cockney. "Now 'and over your money."

"Why, what do you mean?" exclaimed Sir Rider.

"Well," smiled the cockney, "I said I'd guess as near as you, and I've done so. I've guessed exactly the same."

Sir Rider was so amused at the joke that had been played upon him that he handed over the sovereign without a word.

A good story is told of Lord Meath and an American guest who was staying with him at his Irish seat. The conversation happened to turn on railways, and the American was loud in his praise of the safety of American railways, and compared them with the Irish ones, to the great disadvantage of the latter.

"Well," said Lord Meath, with a smile, "I know of at least one railway in Ireland where collisions are absolutely impossible."

"You don't mean it!" said the American, with interest. "How on earth do they manage it? What is their system?"

"On ves," His Lordship answered quietly, "the company has only one train."

Abbas Bey, an Oriental potentate, was giving a fete, and before him on a Louis Quinze table lay a superb watch, the gift of the German Emperor.

Suddenly the electric lights failed. For a full minute Abbas Bey and his guests were in darkness. Then the lights went up again, and, alas! the splendid jeweled watch had disappeared.

"My good friends," said Abbas Bey in suave, diplomatic tones, "lights will now be lowered afresh, and I will expect that the person who took my watch—in order to look at it—will put it back on the table again."

In a profound silence the lights once more went out. There was a shrill sound, as of metal against wood. Then the lights went up again, and Abbas Bey discovered that, instead of the watch being returned, a gold cigarette case, the gift of Queen Victoria, had disappeared as well.

The beautiful German commercial city of Frankfort-on-the-Main is said to have had a curious origin.

When the Emperor Charlemagne contended with the Saxons in forty tunes of war were often against him. On one occasion he was forced to retire along the banks of the Main. At the time there was a thick fog, and he was unable to find his ship, or any place where his army could cross.

He was almost in despair when a doe, carrying a young one, sprang from a thicket in alarm, leaped into the stream, and swam over. Charlemagne followed the example and crossed at the same place. The fog concealed the army, which escaped detection.

When the Emperor reached the shore he stuck his spear into the earth and exclaimed:

"Here shall a city arise, to be called Frankenford!"

In consequence of crossing the stream he overthrew the Saxons. He then built the town, which afterward became the scene of imperial coronations, and, later, of great commercial importance.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened weak in New York where early trading was dull. Declines averaged, but extended throughout the list. No strength was shown in any group. War order issues were the most active. New Haven began ⅝ lower, and soon receded further. U. S. Steel opened a shade lower and moved up and down within a narrow range. Crucible opened higher, but failed to hold all of its initial gain. Industrial Alcohol was weak. The market lacked prominent features during early trading and business was rather quiet for active traders. The supply of stocks did not appear to be large, but demand was heavily limited. Coppers were quiet and in no way reflected large buying and big prices for the metal.

NEW HAVEN SAGGED.

It is reported from New York that the declines of New Haven attracted the most attention. It was sold on a comparatively large scale and within half an hour touched 68¾, off 1⅝. Union Pacific was another weak railroad. Later in the session the list broke open long a number of issues were at the lowest prices known in months. The price trend was steadily downward.

At 10.15 declines included American Can ⅝, American Smelting ⅝, Anaconda ⅝, Baldwin Loco. ¼, Baldwin Loco. ¼, Baldwin ¼, California Petroleum ⅝, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Pressed Steel Car ¼, Colorado Fuel ¼, Goodrich ¼, Inspiration ⅝, Great Northern Ore certificates ⅝, Westinghouse ⅝, N. Y. Air Brake ⅝, Industrial Alcohol 1¾, Marine preferred certificates ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅝, Atchison & Ohio ¼, Canadian Pacific ¼, N. Y. Central ⅜, Union Pacific ⅝, Erie ⅛.

Among gains were Chino ¼, Utah ¼, St Paul ⅛, Crucible ¼, Distillers' ⅛, Lackawanna ⅛, Reading ⅛ and American Coal Products ⅛.

Later in the first hour New Haven sold off 2¾ to 66¼, off 3¼ on the day, while Studebaker was 2½ lower, American smelting 1¾, Canadian Pacific 1½, Baldwin 1¼ and Mexican Petroleum 1¾.

BOSTON MARKET WEAK.

The Boston market opened with prices ranging lower and was dull then and afterwards as well as weak. New Haven was the feature here, Steadily declines of copper included and American Zinc and Butte and Superior ½ to lower.

Among early declines were Alaska Gold ¼, Allouez 1, Copper Range ¾, Davis-Daly ¼, Butte & Superior ½, American Zinc ¼, U. S. Smelting ¼, Preferred ¾, United Fruit ¼ and Ventura ⅛.

Gains included Calumet & Arizona ¼, Shattuck-Arizona ¼ and New Idria ⅛.

WHY WAR STOCKS ADVANCED.

Strength of a number of stocks classed as "war issues" during recent days was attributed to President Wilson's speeches in favor of this country maintaining adequate defenses for war.

Traders in securities argued that if the government is to spend millions for defense to avoid the necessity of ever having to engage in war or contribute the munition plants will be kept busy for years, whether the war in Europe continues or lasts long. Military, naval and other experts declare that the enormous additional current expenditures required to provide an adequate army and navy would be offset by higher prices for what is rolled out of the Capitol by Congress lock as small part of the amount in comparison to a pumpkin.

It is figured by Wall Street that "war babies" will be more permanently nourished by Uncle Sam, and tariff history shows it takes longer than twenty-one months to put "infant industry" to self-sustaining manhood. After specialized plants there is no chance of losing when they bet on American patriotism.

The Pennsylvania legislator at Washington shrewd as the general run of Wall Street gamblers, he would rush legislation through before more votes in making the nation impregnable is in sight, getting appropriations for a colonial Federal building at Muskrat Corners or for dredging Corn Cob Creek.

However, many members of Congress are actuated by big ideas and believe that the reconstructed Southerner who years ago declared: "I am for the old flag and an appropriation."

VALUE OF RAILROADS.

The rail embargo which has been depriving Southern cities of much needed raw material and limiting its fuel supply, not to speak of delaying shipments of products, illustrates how much any section or community is dependent upon railroads.

The rail embargo ruling by the Pennsylvania road is partly due to the inability of the railroads to handle cars for points on its system, of the 25,000 loaded cars bound over its lines monthly for points east of Trenton N. J. and swapping movement, it receives only 10 per cent from New England designations. It is believed that sixty-nine per cent. of all manufacturers in Massachusetts have been affected by the embargo which has been more or less operative for weeks. It may be necessary, the State Board of Labor and Industries is inquiring to close many plants in Massachusetts unless railroads find a way to relieve the situation.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized the New Haven to increase its all-rail rate on bituminous coal in carloads from the Clearfield district in Pennsylvania, which the Rhode Island from $2.45 to $2.70 per gross ton.

For December Illinois Central reports its gross earnings increased $337,352 and its net $260,404.

American Can is expected to show at the end of this year net earnings ranging from $20,000,000 to $22,000,000, and to be able to pay debenture indebtedness amounting to $15,000,000, besides accumulated dividends on preferred stock.

H., Jan. 29—deed executed in the second year of the reign of King George III, transferring a tract of land to the town of South Hampton, has just been sent to the Rockingham County Registry of Deeds. The surest way to prevent war is not to fear it. The idea that nothing on earth is so dreadful as war is inculcated too studiously among us. Disgrace is worse. Abandonment of essential rights is worse.—JOSIAH QUINCY

PUBLIC SERVICE

The President and the Nation Are Alike to Be Congratulated

Mr. Wilson's Appointment of Mr. Brandeis to the Highest and Most Powerful Court in the World Is an Example of Splendid, Independent, Courageous and Patriotic Public Service.

The President has rendered the nation a magnificent service in the appointment of Louis D. Brandeis to the highest and most powerful court in the world.

A New England newspaper does not need to eulogize his appointment nor to dwell at length upon the qualities or the public service of Mr. Brandeis. This is especially true of the Boston AMERICAN, in whose columns Mr. Brandeis was accustomed to wage his frequent battles for the people—the average man—the general interest against the special interest; the many, scattered and disorganized, against a few, organized and entrenched.

In this editorial column, our readers know, the AMERICAN struck blow for blow with Mr. Brandeis in a common cause. This newspaper feels a peculiar and almost personal gratification at this recognition of the achievements of Mr. Brandeis, for in them all this newspaper has participated, sharing in his victories and sharing in the calumnies heaped upon him by the devotees of organized greed who filled the air with their slanders as they were being stripped of their unlawful privileges. Mr. Brandeis' statement of facts within his knowledge was legal tender to the AMERICAN and our political judgment be accepted with equal confidence.

If he is not more useful to the people of America on the Supreme Bench than as a private citizen it is because he has been EXTRAORDINARILY useful as a private citizen.

It is a long road that has no turning, they say, and the cunningest men often build worse than they know. A State street cabal, by prostituting many active Democratic politicians of Massachusetts, prevented Mr. Brandeis from becoming a member of the President's Cabinet three years ago, and thereby deprived New England of Cabinet representation for the first time since the Civil War, we believe.

But these State street gentlemen shot their bolt. They may now contemplate the indirect but certain result of their work. We hope they will have the grace to make the most of it.

Not in years has a President made so good an appointment. It was a high-minded, spirited act. When the people cast up President Wilson's account, this appointment must be charged to his very great credit.

The AMERICAN congratulates President Wilson upon a splendid, independent, courageous, patriotic service, the influence of which will be felt beneficially throughout the constitutional structure of the nation from the lowest stone in the Bill of Rights to the last refinement of our political superstructure.

Congress Should Pass This Agricultural Bill

The Last Three Administrations Have Promised a Rural Credits Bill or an Agricultural Markets Bill or Both. None of These Administrations Has Done Anything.

The two great agricultural measures pending before this Congress are the Agricultural Markets bill and the Rural Credits bill.

Of these two there is more division of sentiment upon the Rural Credits bill and there will necessarily be more delay in reaching a general conclusion speedily upon this measure.

But so far as sensible men can discover there is no real fundamental difference anywhere upon the national market.

And since this is so, why should not the Senate and the House pass this bill and send it to the President for his signature without delay?

This action would mark one certain, definite, sensible step in the midst of a chaos of uncertain, indefinite things in Congress and before the country, and it would give new life and vitality to the farmer.

It would convey to the country the wholesome impression that at least one thing sound and helpful has been done, and it would make at least one sound and inspiring basis for prosperity upon which the country might begin to build.

The farmers' marketing bill is derived from the soundest established systems in other countries; it is a system of co-operation which would do for the farmers what chambers of commerce and boards of trade are now doing for commerce and finance.

The farmers' marketing measure is derived from the German Landwirtschaftsrat, just as the soundest measure of rural credits now proposed is from the German Landschaftsrat system. Both of these systems have worked well in Germany and are the basis of that country's great prosperity.

The Landwirtschaftsrat, or German National Marketing system, is as perfectly adaptable to our country as it is to Germany. It should be adopted just as speedily as possible that the country may get to work upon it.

What the Germans call the Landwirtschaftsrat the American Congress would denominate the National Chamber of Agriculture. But the method, the system and the results would be the same.

The object of the National Chamber of Agriculture would be to bring the producer into more immediate contact with the consumer of his product without the absorbing part played by the middlemen.

Under this system it is possible to say definitely that the trust will be eliminated, because under its workings in other countries the trust is eliminated.

There are no agricultural trusts in Germany, however much they may exist in banking or finance.

They have been completely eliminated from agriculture by the body which is equivalent to our proposed National Chamber of Agriculture. The producer receives more for the product of his toil, and the consumer buys the agricultural products at less than he would pay for them otherwise, for the simple reason that the middleman is done away with. The goods are brought from the farm to the kitchen.

The middlemen under the proposed national commission would be but employes of the co-operating farmers.

The National Chamber of Commerce at first would be a national commission appointed by the President, but as soon as it was organized it would automatically react to the thoroughly democratic plan of beginning and working from the bottom to the top.

Its foundations would be in the townships and when a sufficient number of townships were organized they would form the county organization, and a sufficient number of delegates from the county organizations would form the State organization, and a sufficient number of representatives from the State organizations would form the national organization and become the National Chamber of Commerce.

Each individual in the townships would have the full benefit of the information and of the influence of the National Chamber in the best and most favorable market for his products.

If he were simply a dealer or producer of prunes, his fifty cents admission fee in his township organization would entitle him to know all that the county and the State and the national organizations knew of the localities in and out of his own country in which prunes were most in demand and at which he could obtain for them the best possible market price.

This system, which is a working reality in a large part of the Old World, will mean very much to the American farmer. It will help to make his business more profitable and himself better and happier.

Until this problem of profitably marketing farm products is solved, there will be waste, unprofitable labor and high living cost.

Not only does the tremendous sum of six thousand million dollars annually disappear or become absorbed between the farm and the consumers' kitchen, but products of the farmer often go to waste while hungry consumers would gladly pay for these products if there was a way of getting them.

No greater service could be rendered to all the people of this country than by the prompt establishment and effective putting into execution of this national farmers' marketing organization.

The American farmer, not nearly so patient as he is supposed to be, and not nearly so indifferent as silence would seem to infer, is asking the question:

"Why does not The Congress of the United States do something AND DO IT NOW to start the revival of sound agricultural prosperity in the United States?"

We put the question to the Democratic majority in the Senate and in the House.

We put the question to the Republican minority in the Senate and in the House.

We appeal to Democrats and Republicans in the Senate and in the House to pass this measure, and to pass it NOW.

Every week of delay is a week of weakness and of distinct obstruction, is an unpatriotic act on the part of the Senate and of the House.

Here is one thing that can be done—one great, sound, practical piece of statesmanship that ought to be passed within the week.

Puck, the Laggard

A Mighty Poor European Correspondent He'D Make, With His Little Old "Girdle Round About the Earth in Forty Minutes!"

One hundred years ago the "newspaper" appeared once a week or thereabouts. It consisted of four pages of "miscellany." When the roads were dry, the stage coach might—or might not—happen in with a packet of letters from New York or Washington. Was it three, four, or five weeks that the sailing vessel required to cross the Atlantic? So came the newspapers of London, Manchester, Edinborough. Here the Yankee editor found his "Foreign Intelligence."

Time passes.

Wonderful one hundred years!

Steam; railroads; telegraph; telephone; photography; electric light; wireless; aeroplane; moving picture; the modern printing press.

Do YOU suppose the scientists are ah-so-lutely right when they say the earth turns like a spinning top upon its shortest axis, making ONE rotation every twenty-four hours?

And has this ALWAYS been true?

No; there is no appeal from Science and the scientists, but it does seem as if the earth must have turned more MODERATELY, in the "good" old days of stage coach, sailing vessel and tallow candle.

YOUR great-grandfather arose at "sun-up." He went to bed with the chickens. He had the Bible and Shakespeare. If he was a gentleman—the word meant something different in those days—he MAY have had other books. He may also have seen an occasional "newspaper," such as it was. If the King died, or the Emperor ordered a new divorce, or a ship was lost at sea, or a great fire destroyed Moscow, Great-Grandfather heard about it EVENTUALLY.

Perhaps he was "just as well off." Those were, perhaps, the GOOD old days. Heigho!

But who would go back, IF he could?

You, sir: When do YOU want to hear that the great blessing of peace has been restored to a quarrelling, Bleeding, distressed, agonized and sinful world? Do YOU want to hear about it ninety days after date, or would you prefer to follow, step by step, the negotiations which lead to peace, from the first inquiry, or "feeler," straight along to pourparler and treaty?

A gentleman in the rear "objects" to the question.

On what grounds?

Because, he says, it is "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial."

The honorable member is quite apparently a sea-lawyer: his objection, nevertheless, is sustained. The question may be regarded as stricken out.

BECAUSE, in the month of January, A. D. 1916, we want our news when it IS news. Thanks to telegraphy, thanks to telephony and the cable, thanks to great newsgathering associations like the International News Service, with trained correspondents in all the capitals and other great cities of the world, WE shall hear of Peace even before the honorable commissioners arise to shake hands over mahogany council table.

Meanwhile, we desire to know how the great war PROCEEDS. The Sunday AMERICAN will tell us.

We are interested in OTHER things, also.

One of the most eminent of Bostonians—one of the greatest of Americans—has been called by the President to adorn the nation's highest court. We of New England know the man, know his white life, know his great soul. We want to know what the country says of him.

A wonderfully dramatic trial draws briskly to its close in Providence. Steamships are lost at sea almost daily. Colonel House, representing the President of the United States, begins in Berlin his "conversations" with leading German officials. Suburban Mayors receive Black Hand threats. The Boston police lie in wait for a discriminating Jack the Hugger who annoys pretty telephone operators.

This "goodly frame, the earth," produces a HUNDRED interesting stories every twenty-four hours. The newspaper, making of Mr. Shakespeare's Puck a veritable laggard, tells us about them minute by minute.

All of which merely to remind our friends that another issue of New England's greatest Sunday newspaper is at hand. One would be overjoyed if the space originally at hand here were wide enough and deep enough within which even to hint at the Sunday AMERICAN'S table of contents. O! for the day of the little weekly, its four pages, and its "Foreign Intelligence." OUR Sunday newspaper consists of at least seventy pages!

We MUST call attention to the fact that, on Monday next, there begins before the Public Service Commission a series of public hearings on the petition of the Bay State Street Railway Company, for the right to establish a six-cent fare in sixty-three Massachusetts cities and towns. The "Bay State" last year carried 205,306,585 passengers, a volume of traffic large enough to have given every man, woman and child in the United States a ride "out and back." There is, therefore, a tremendously large public interest in these "Bay State" hearings, the most comprehensive advance story regarding which will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Owen Johnson, novelist; Richard Le Gallienne, poet; Maurice Maeterlinck, Dr. Woods Hutchinson, Pierre Loti, Charles Ferguson are a very FEW of the notables whose contributions will be printed in our Sunday newspaper. In addition to the daily letter of Dorothy Dix, the Mohr case will be discussed by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, another bright star in the Sunday AMERICAN'S great galaxy of special writers.

The Duke of Manchester has gone broke again. A list is printed of those to whom His Grace owes $1,000,000. Maggie Teyte will marry again. Lady Duff-Gordon writes of the new coats. Lina Cavalieri tells How to Have a Summer Face in Winter.

And—hurriedly—for a FINAL word which might well have suggested our entire story: The society section of the Sunday AMERICAN, now under the capable editorial direction of Mrs. C. H. Washburn, has already become the authoritative last word regarding the activities of Boston's socially elect. To know not merely who's who in Boston society, but who's where, and why, and what next, one MUST see, regularly, the Sunday AMERICAN.
